The Oxford Encyclopedia of American Literature 2004

from aesthetes in africa to the cultural history of the teapot the essays in this collection contribute to scholarly debates across a wide range of disciplines addressing the question of whether eclectic relationships in victorian decorative arts are actually self conscious iconographic schemes or merely random juxtapositions of assorted objects rethinking the interior c 1867 1896 aestheticism and arts and crafts argues that no firm demarcation exists between the two movements examined here in the process the contributors explore a wide variety of interiors in locations as diverse as london cornwall new england and tangiers analyzing spaces public and private sacred and secular the volume poses several historiographic challenges drawing on a wide range of feminist and queer theories the book questions the identification of nineteenth century interiors as exclusively female or family spaces the collection also addresses the complex and temporary character of interiors and responds to the recent scholarly trend to return questions of feeling and embodied experience to the study of the decorative arts the 1890s have long been thought one of the most male oriented eras in american history but in reading such writers as frank norris with mary wilkins freeman and charlotte perkins gilman with stephen crane jennifer l fleissner boldly argues that feminist claims in fact shaped the period s cultural mainstream women compulsion modernity reopens a moment when the young american woman embodied both the promise and threat of a modernizing world fleissner shows that this era s expanding opportunities for women were inseparable from the same modern developments industrialization consumerism typically believed to constrain human freedom with women compulsion and modernity fleissner creates a new language for the strange way the writings of the time both broaden and question individual agency much literary criticism focuses on literary producers and their products but an important part of such work considers the end user the reader it asks such questions as how far can the author condition the response of the reader and how much does the reader create the meaning of a text dr bennett s collection includes important essays from such writers and critics as wolfgang izer mary jacobus roger chartier michel de certeau shoshana felman maurice blanchot paul de man and yves Bonnefoy it looks in turn at deconstructionist feminist new historicist and psychoanalytical response to the school the book then considers the act of reading itself discussing such issues as the uniqueness of any reading and the difficulties involved in its analysis printed images were ubiquitous in early modern britain and they often convey powerful messages which are all the more important for having circulated widely at the time yet by comparison with printed texts these images have been neglected particularly by historians to whom they ought to be of the greatest interest this volume helps remedy this state of affairs complementing the online digital library of british printed images to 1700 bpi1700 org uk it offers a series of essays which exemplify the many ways in which such visual material can throw light on the history of the period ranging from religion to politics polemic to satire natural science to consumer culture the collection explores how printed images need to be read in terms of the visual syntax understood by contemporaries their full meaning often only becoming clear when they are located in the context in which they were produced and deployed the result is not only to illustrate the sheer richness of material of this kind but also to underline the importance of the messages which it conveys which often come across more strongly in visual form than through textual commentaries with contributions from many leading exponents of the cultural history of early modern britain including experts on religion politics science and art the book s appeal will be equally wide demonstrating how every facet of british culture in the period can be illuminated through the study of printed images house has long been synonymous with home the significance of four walls and a roof lies far deeper than simply shelter from the elements a house stands for sanctuary family belonging privacy and our pasts even when standardised as a barratt home or modern housing estate every house bears the stamp of the people who live in it remaining a bastion of quirky individualism the great indoors is the first cultural history of the family home in the twentieth century comparable to rachel hewitt's map of a nation or joe moran's queuing for beginners as society has changed so has the house the hall which had its finest hour during the middle ages when families and their servants ate slept and socialised there together has now been relegated to a mere passageway only useful for getting to other more private rooms highmore shows how houses display the currents of class identity and social transformation that are displayed in the arrangement and use of the family home and he also offers an engaging and stimulating peek through the curtains to explain why the fridge is used as a communication centre how the loo or toilet inspired its very own literary genre and what your furniture arrangement reveals about how you function as a family
