Clinical Education in the Health Professions 2009 clinical settings are dynamic educational spaces that present both opportunities and barriers to learning and teaching designed to inform challenge and educate health professionals about the evidence underpinning clinical education practices and outcomes this multi disciplinary book brings together important concepts in healthcare education and addresses context and processes of learning professional identity and socialisation feedback and assessment ethics and inter professional education the authors encourage teaching and learning practices based on research findings expertise and innovation and the development of individual teaching methods and styles from a theoretical base that provides relevant principles direction and support with clear links between theory research and practice collaboration from a broad range of clinical disciplines and models for learning and teaching grounded in empirical research clinical education in the health professions will become a standard reference for all health professionals and educators examines patterns of practice in clinical education in the health professions using a qualitative research focus identifies the roles of university and clinical educators students peers and patients in clinical education highlights implicit tensions in clinical education practice and presents strategies to identify and address such tensions challenges the reader to consider new approaches to clinical education that may optimise students learning and enculturation into the health professions despite claims that clinical education lies at the heart of health care education little empirical research has explored what constitutes effectiveness in clinical teaching and learning this book draws on the research ideas and expertise of researchers who have observed and researched different aspects of clinical education their research has spanned clinical education topics including professional identity and socialisation assessment and feedback pedagogical methods clinical reasoning dealing with ambiguity dealing with diversity and interprofessional education this book has been designed to synthesise empirical clinical education research and ideas about the context value processes and outcomes of clinical education each chapter presents a research based facet of clinical education as a platform from which knowledge and future research in clinical education can occur the authors entice the reader to reconceptualise facets of their own teaching and learning practices based on research findings expertise and innovation

Politics and Nuclear Power 2014-07-15 with the dramatic changes opec precipitated in the structure of world energy markets during the 1970s energy became a central concern to policymakers throughout the industrialized west this book examines the responses of public officials in three leading european nations the federal republic of germany france and the netherlands to the energy crisis as the study shows the proposed energy programs in the three countries shared remarkable similarities yet the policy outcomes were very different to explain why michael t hatch goes beyond the specific content of government energy policy to include an analysis of the policymaking process itself at the heart of the study is an exploration of the various dimensions of nuclear policy in west germany the political consensus on nuclear power that prevailed in the initial years following the energy crisis disintegrated as antinuclear citizens initiatives the courts and trade unions as well as the traditional political parties entered the policymaking process subsequent government efforts to resolve the political stalemate over nuclear power foundered in a morass of domestic electoral politics and an international debate over nuclear proliferation extending the analysis to comparisons with french and dutch nuclear strategies hatch argues that the critical factor in determining nuclear policy was the manner in which the political system structured the nuclear debate in contrast to west germany where the electoral and parliamentary systems enhanced the influence of the antinuclear greens the electoral system and constellation of political parties in france served to dissipate the influence of the antinuclear forces thus in france the nuclear program encountered few impediments in the netherlands as in west germany government policy was paralyzed in the face of antinuclear sentiment across a broad spectrum of dutch society hatch has provided here not only a useful examination of the development of energy policy in western europe but also a case study of the close interplay between policy and politics
