their allegiance to those forces with whom they anticipate they have the most to gain and under circumstances that minimize social costs the authors identify the highly repressive political culture within the latifundio reinforced by the national political system as the key factor inhibiting overt expressions of political demands the emergence of revolutionary political consciousness is found to be the result of cumulative experiences and the breakdown of traditional institutions of control the violent illegal seizure of the farm is perceived by the peasantry as a legitimate act based on self interest as well as general principles of justice in other words the seizure is perceived as a natural act suggesting that perhaps two sets of moralities functioned within the traditional system the book is divided into two parts the first part contains a detailed analysis of peasant behavior the second contains transcriptions of peasant interviews combined they give the texture and flavor of insurgent peasant politics this vintage book contains a collection of true stories concerning the unbelievable feats and accomplishments of various dogs many of whom were known by the author from firefighting and life saving to catching thieves and beyond these uncanny stories illustrate just how amazing man s best friend can really be dogs you d like to meet is highly recommended for dog lovers of all ages and would make for a charming addition to any collection contents include the mystery of friday a scottish swimmer an irish hero dog bolo why paddy budged sanctuary the stolen sheep wun lung s dog a films drama the greater courage child saver and thief catcher helping each other fire fighting jack biddy cum sirius et cetera many vintage books such as this are increasingly scarce and expensive we are republishing this volume now in an affordable modern high quality edition complete with its original artwork and text first published in 1907 toilets trees and gender can there be a connection is there a gender angle to a business story is gender in politics only about how many women get elected to parliament is osteoporosis a women s disease why do more women die in natural disasters these are not the questions journalists usually ask when they set out to do their jobs as reporters sub editors photographers of editors yet by not asking are they missing out on something perhaps half the story this is the question this book edited and written by journalists for journalists and the lay public interested in media raises through examples from the media and from their own experience the contributors explain the concept of gender sensitive journalism and look at a series of subjects that journalists have to cover sexual assault environment development business politics health disasters conflict and set out a simple way of integrating a gendered lens into day to day journalism written in a non academic accessible style this book is possibly the first of its kind in india one that attempts to inject a gender perspective into journalism published by zubaan illuminates the thrilling possibilities of female grassroots activism in india through the story of sampat pal and her pink gang what is faith what does true faith look like many people profess to have faith in god it s true that faith comes much easier to some people than it does for others but what does genuine faith truly look like the bible tells us that faith means putting our full confidence in the things we hope for it means being certain of things we cannot see is that even possible that s the kind of faith god wants us to have in him he wants us to trust our entire existence to him every need every want every desire he wants us to trust that he will provide for us he doesn t say he will give us whatever we ask for he says he will provide for our needs and look after those who trust in him can we really trust god for our every need it s hard to imagine what that type of faith might look like to most of us but many of us have perfect examples of that type of faith living in our homes our pets more specifically our dogs obviously our children rely on us to provide for them but as they grow they become less dependent on us as parents dogs however are completely dependent on us from the time we bring them home to the day they die they count on us to provide for their every need they must have complete faith in us to provide for them no matter what they need from food to hygiene to companionship and love they have must have complete faith and trust that we will provide for them that we won t let them down that s the kind of faith god wants us to have in him isn't that what true faith looks like if we claim to be believers isn't that what our faith in god should look like shouldn't we have complete faith that god will meet our every need no matter how big or how small faith that demonstrates an unwavering trust that god will never let us down shouldn't we have faith like a dog based on extended interviews at the culiprán fundo in chile with peasants who recount in their own terms their political evolution this is an in depth study of peasants in social and political action it deals with two basic themes first the authoritarian structure within a traditional latifundio and its eventual replacement by a peasant based elected committee and second the events shaping the emergence of political consciousness among the peasantry petras and zemelman merino trace the careers of local peasant leaders followers and opponents of the violent illegal land seizure in 1965 and the events that triggered the particular action the findings of this study challenge the oft accepted assumption that peasants represent a passive traditional downtrodden group capable only of following urban based elites the peasant militants while differing considerably in their ability to grasp complex political and social problems show a great deal of political skill calculate rationally on the possibility of success and select and manipulate political allies on the basis of their own primary needs the politicized peasantry lend their allegiance to those forces with whom they anticipate they have the most to gain and under circumstances that minimize social costs the authors identify the highly repressive political culture within the latifundio reinforced by the national political system as the key factor inhibiting overt expressions of political demands the emergence of revolutionary political consciousness is found to be the result of cumulative experiences and the breakdown of traditional institutions of control the violent illegal seizure of the farm is perceived by the peasantry as a legitimate act based on self interest as well as general principles of justice in other words the seizure is perceived as a natural act suggesting that perhaps two sets of moralities functioned within the traditional system the book is divided into two parts the first part contains a detailed analysis of peasant behavior the second contains transcriptions of peasant interviews combined they give the texture and flavor of insurgent peasant politics
