Science under siege 2012-11-01 on saturday 29 november 2008 the royal zoological society of nsw held a forum with the theme of science under siege as the rzs is a zoological society zoology under threat became the secondary theme and the basis for selecting speakers this book records that forum with the papers developed for this book as the written word from the spoken presentations papers that were presented as posters are included as are the edited plenary sessions which featured questions from the floor with answers and comments encouraged from anyone in the forum we were delighted that mark horstman from abc catalyst was willing to replace his peripatetic colleague paul willis who was nonetheless very happy to write the foreword there is a place for such skilled science communicators we need more of them and scientists at the lab bench or in the field or exploring computer models or those that have now taken a job in the policy world need to stay in touch with them some might say that the title science under siege seems a bit extreme but we invite you to examine the evidence as presented in this book what follows is an edited version of the introductory material that advertised the forum the title looks dramatic but if you ask yourself is anything killing the science in your area of interest you might be surprised that you come up with a point or two then ask a wider set of questions such as are there any pressures that preclude people from doing good zoology do either political budgetary constraints impact on your field is science in the media a subject that influences the outcome of your work are there economic impediments to careers in zoology is the education mix in australia right for this new century are the best researchers becoming full time administrators or the converse the poor researchers becoming the administrators can you place the australian situation in an international context are there reduced opportunities for human interactions with the natural world is the virtual world killing reality and what are your predictions of the future to deal with such issues the royal zoological society of nsw has structured the day to emphasize a range of themes beginning with identifying the issues including those that are persistent and those that are emerging and encompassing palpable hits to science direct and indirect hits to science include such matters as the withdrawal of funding subversion of science death by 1000 cuts redirection of funding to fashion issues and using the name of science to justify things that are really not justifiable the name of science is being dragged down we need to confront the ever present problem of ignoring the scientifically accurate for the politically correct this raises such questions as to whether basic skills in biology are not being acquired because of public concern based on extreme animal rights propaganda good science is not optional but what can be done if you are under siege the answers include understanding the philosophy of science the legal perspective and asking what scientists are or should be doing audience participation will be a central part of this forum the plenary sessions will address questions raised by the speakers and the posters and debate issues and consider options for future directions it is widely known that it is hard to pull a major paper together on this theme but so many scientists know of at least one matter that they would like to draw to public attention so short contributions are included listen to the speakers present some overarching themes or compelling case studies contribute to the debate on the day then examine your stance on a variety of these subjects to see whether the day changes your view of this often cryptic aspect of zoology as editors we wish to acknowledge the skills of the referees all papers were refereed by two peers and the patience of the authors for what has been a long gap between the date of the forum and this publication by the end of 2008 the royal zoological society of nsw along with everyone else was caught by the gfc global financial crisis and we simply had to extend the length of the queue for publication we also reassessed our mode of publication the council of the society voted to publish this production as an ebook as well as a short print run for formal library deposit and other essential matters the ebook is open access to enhance the reach of the papers and the ideas at the same time the royal zoological society of nsw signed a contract for a more international mode of access of the publications of the society and papers are now available via metapress rzsnsw metapress com science remains under siege in our view and now we have been alerted to the range of issues it becomes easier to spot the small irritating closing of options that collectively amount to a denial of science and its relegation to an optional way of looking at the world during production of this book this matter became obvious on a number of fronts which led us to invite the paper by rosie cooney and colleagues to defend their science of kangaroo conservation and commercial harvesting from an attack on the science we also saw that this issue of science under siege needs more airing and the royal zoological society of nsw is planning its forum for the end of 2012 to take up another strand of this theme by capitalizing on the lifelong insights of scientists under the rubric of grumpy scientists an ecological conscience of a nation this idea in fact derives directly from the suggestions in the plenary sessions by nick holmes and charley krebs we are also concerned for young scientists with science under siege manifesting often in a failure to create permanent careers for science graduates that advance science itself and zoology in particular from flourishing and identifying problems and finding solutions if we want to conserve the native fauna of australia then australian zoologists will have to be key team members we contend that to put science under siege and zoology under threat we not only further imperil our native wildlife but also the careers of the small band of specialists that can see the issues find the problems implement solutions and evaluate the outcomes in short science under siege is not a light matter and no one in this forum thought so read on form an opinion and speak up and publish your thoughts your examples and your solutions

Wild Mammals in Captivity 2010 animal welfare has long been recognised as central to the role of the veterinary professional but this is increasingly aligned with the welfare of humans and the broader environment in which we co exist this is the first book dedicated to the role of the veterinarian in one welfare a concept that recognises the interconnections between animal welfare human wellbeing and the environment the book demonstrates through a wide range of international case studies why professional ethics and the use of good evidence is integral to this role contributors bring a rich variety of writings each with their own perception of the role of the veterinarian in improving animal welfare and human wellbeing one welfare in practice the role of the veterinarian emphasises the importance of interdisciplinary collaboration and solutions it is essential that veterinary practitioners recognise when other professionals or disciplines need to be consulted to benefit both animals and humans with its multiple fascinating approaches to one welfare this book will inform and inspire the veterinarian to find areas where collaborative action reaps the greatest rewards this unique book shows how veterinarians can and are contributing to improving animal and human welfare offering practical advice as to how the profession can further engage in one welfare in a range of settings

One Welfare in Practice 2010-09-30 it seems at times unthinkable that a book like this would have to be written although i am relatively sure that aldous huxley foresaw its necessity when he wrote brave new world but the time has arrived where babies are manufactured in sterile facilities and tested for their fitness for life in the world while we have not yet advanced sufficiently in biological sciences to entirely forego natural gestation in favor of prenatal programming process which huxley describes we have reached the point where those unwanted embryos are set aside freeze dried and abandoned or destroyed when they do not meet the standard set for a child this book affirms the intrinsic goodness of the life of each embryo and explores from the catholic perspective the possibility of frozen embryo rescue by adoption it looks at those arguments which see the elements of in vitro fertilization as so contrary to the faith and the natural law as to be irrecoverably intrinsically evil and rejects those in favor of a small and narrow path of adoption to fully re incorporate a child through the love of a mother and a father into the society which abandoned it

Chordate Zoology 2014-09-15 this book presents a first comprehensive typological analysis of noun phrases in australian languages covering the domains of classification qualification quantification determination and constituency the analysis is based on a representative sample of 100 languages among other points the results call into question the classic idea that australian languages tend to lack phrasal structures in the nominal domain with over two thirds of the languages showing evidence for phrasehood moreover it is argued that it may be more interesting to typologise languages on the basis of where and how they allow phrasal structure rather than on the basis of a yes no answer to the question of constituency the analysis also shows that a determiner slot can be identified in about half of the languages even though they generally lack classic determiner features like obligatory use in particular contexts or a restriction to one determiner per np special attention is given to elements which can be used both inside and beyond determiner slots demonstrating how part of speech and functional structure do not always align the book is of interest to researchers documenting australian languages as well as to typologists and theorists this volume focuses on the broad pattern of increasing biodiversity through time and recurrent events of minor and major ecosphere reorganization intense scrutiny is devoted to the pattern of physical including isotopic sedimentary and biotic circumstances through the time intervals during which life crises occurred these events affected terrestrial lacustrine and estuarine ecosystems locally and globally but have affected continental shelf ecosystems and even deep ocean ecosystems the pattern of these events is the backdrop against which modelling the pattern of future environmental change needs to be evaluated

Play Therapy 2010-01-01 now in a revised and updated second edition this volume provides an authoritative account of the current status of archaeological theory as presented by some of its major exponents and innovators over recent decades it summarizes the latest developments in the field and looks to its future exploring some of the cutting edge ideas at the forefront of the discipline the volume captures the diversity of contemporary archaeological theory some authors argue for an approach close to the natural sciences others for an engagement with cultural debate about representation of the past some minimize the relevance of culture to societal change while others see it as central some focus on the contingent and the local others on long term evolution while few practitioners in theoretical archaeology would today argue for a unified disciplinary approach the authors in this volume increasingly see links and convergences between their perspectives the volume also reflects archaeology's new openness to external influences as well as the desire to contribute to wider debates the contributors examine ways in which archaeological evidence contributes to theories of evolutionary psychology as well as to the social sciences in general where theories of social relationships agency landscape and identity are informed by the long term perspective of archaeology the new edition of archaeological theory today will continue to be essential reading for students and scholars in archaeology and in the social sciences more generally
