in a time when it seems like we've run into the limits on what marx dewey and freud might hold for liberatory critique this peculiarly uplifting book seeks to identify some promising thinking and teaching practices especially for work in our contemporary corporate university of excellence with auto ethnography as a baseline for reflection on her personal teaching life in this troubling political era as well as an insistence that all students are future teachers whether they seek formal work in classrooms or not barbara regenspan selects insights descending from her horribly imperfect trinity marx dewey and freud to reevaluate what it means to have obligations to unknowable others in our complex and global reality drawing on an interdisciplinary cast of contemporary social theorists such as avery gordon deborah britzman maxine greene bill readings and alain badiou this book traces hauntagogical thinking and related classroom practice hauntagogy pedagogy aimed to create wide awakeness through the unearthing of acts of historical and interpersonal hauntings balanced between critique and hope regenspan offers the field of educational studies including teacher education but also higher education more generally a way of conceiving of the classroom as a place where contradictions in discourses are mined with and for our students who will be future teachers in the formal or informal sense here is a view of what historical materialism might hold for the relationship between democracy and education and what that relationship means for new wild conceptions of self politics and spirituality barbara regenspan combines the personal the political and the educational in creative ways in this volume in the process she provides a number of important insights into the human complexities and necessary commitments involved in struggling toward an education that is worthy of its name michael w apple john bascom professor of curriculum and instruction and educational policy studies university of wisconsin madison and author of can education change society so much of my experience as an american teacher fell into place while reading this book regenspan never veers far from the pragmatic and personal realities of being an american educator right now grappling with indifference short sightedness and disillusionment of the system her deft and often profound intellectual work is peppered with anecdotes both personal and pedagogical and these accounts of teaching and learning on the ground level make her case fierce and fresh haunting and the educational imagination is politically humane and intellectually electrifying tony hoagland professor of creative writing at the university of houston national book award finalist teacher of high school english teachers and author of unincorporated persons in the late honda dynasty cover design by madison kuhn this important and original new book reports on a major investigation of the outcomes of probation supervision is concerned with the key question of what works in probation and comes at an important moment of change and development for the probation service in the uk unlike previous studies which have relied mostly on official data this book makes use of over 200 interviews with men and women on probation and their supervising probation officers rethinking what works with offenders has the following objectives to understand probation work from the perspectives of those who deliver it and those to whom it is delivered to study probation intervention as a whole in particular the probation order rather than specific aspects to locate probation work in the wider social contexts of those on probation to analyse how probation works and to reconceptualise probation outcomes in terms of degrees of success rather than as successful or unsuccessful to assess the policy implications of these conclusions this book presents an important and challenging range of findings on what works in probation and with offenders and will be essential reading for anybody professionally concerned with the present and future of probation raises central issues at a critical time for the reorganised national probation service based on extensive research including 200 interviews essential reading for anybody interested in what works in probation
