managing mental health in the community is a guide to best practice in the management of community care for people with mental health problems a major theme is how to balance the triangle of care that represents the needs and concerns of the user carer professional or family and community rather than focusing on the mechanics of the task this book aims to encourage reflective practice amongst staff managers and policy makers the experienced practitioners who contribute not only challenge some of the assumptions prevalent in the field but also present some tried and tested interventions used to enable users staff and managers to function more effectively in community settings they consider how community care has developed the fundamental concepts of community care how management is affected by practice how care systems are designed managing mental health in the community should be essential reading for mental health practitioners managers social workers policy makers organizational consultants and all those professionals who are committed to improving the quality of mental health services provided in the community this book reviews the performance and effectiveness of the community development quotas cdq programs that were formed as a result of the sustainable fisheries act of 1996 the cdq program is a method of allocating access to fisheries to eligible communities with the intent of promoting local social and economic conditions through participation in fishing related activities the book looks at those alaskan fisheries that have experience with cdqs such as halibut pollock sablefish and crab and comments on the extent to which the programs have met their objectivesâ helping communities develop ongoing commercial fishing and processing activities creating employment opportunities and providing capital for investment in fishing processing and support projects such as infrastructure it also considers how cdq type programs might apply in the western pacific this is the first of a series of monograph supplements to the journal new testament studies the main purpose of the series is to make possible publication of work which is too long for inclusion in the journal the monographs will be published in either english french or german the present one is in english dr gärtner s purpose is to follow in detail the parallels between the new testament and qumran writings in their concept of the community christian or essene as a spiritual temple the whole complex of relationships between qumran and the early church is studied with the purpose of extending our knowledge of the jewish background of the new testament dr gärtner s conclusions lend strong support to the view that it is from this qumran type of judaism that the christian church arose this is an important and comprehensive book that is timely original and of uniformly high quality there is relatively little familiarity outside of Mexico with the incredibly rich experience of community forest management there certainly no comprehensive review such as this book exists that covers so many aspects of the subject the book will appeal to scholars from both social and biophysical sciences interested in forest management and in broader conservation and development issues marianne schmink director of the center for Latin American studies tropical conservation and development program university of Florida Mexico leads the world in community management of forests for the commercial production of timber yet this success story is not widely known even in Mexico despite the fact that communities around the globe are increasingly involved in managing their own forest resources to assess the achievements and shortcomings of Mexico's community forest management programs and to offer approaches that can be applied in other parts of the world this book collects fourteen articles that explore community forest management from historical policy economic ecological sociological and political perspectives the contributors to this book are established researchers in the field as well as many of the important actors in Mexico's nongovernmental organization sector some articles are case studies of community forest management programs in the states of Michoacán Oaxaca Durango Quintana Roo and Guerrero others provide broader historical and contemporary overviews of various aspects of community forest management as a whole this volume clearly establishes that the community forest sector in Mexico is large diverse and has achieved unusual maturity in doing what communities in the rest of the world are only beginning to explore how to balance community income with forest conservation in this process Mexican communities are also managing for sustainable landscapes and livelihoods football clubs across the world continue to embody many of the collective symbols identifications and processes of connectivity which have long been associated with the notion of community in recent years however the very term community has become the focus of renewed interest within popular discourse and amongst academics politicians and policy makers it has become something of a buzz word wheeled out as both a lament to more certain times and as an appeal to a better future a term imbued with all the richness associated with human interaction community has also been employed increasingly within football for instrumental reasons concerned with policy and stadium redevelopment and in broader rhetoric about clubs their localities and fans this book brings together a range of key debates around contemporary understandings of community in world football split into four sections it considers political and theoretical debates around football and its connection with community different national and ethnic football communities instrumental uses of football to bridge gaps within and between groups future directions in the football and community debate this book was published as a special issue of Soccer Society this volume is concerned with exploring sectarian attitudes toward wealth and the economic practices that gave rise to and issued from those attitudes an introductory chapter establishes the state of the question three subsequent chapters focus on major sectarian texts the damascus document the rule of the community and 4qinstruction a other sectarian and non sectarian texts that mention wealth are discussed in a fifth chapter while archaeological evidence from the qumran region and contemporary documentary texts are introduced in chapters seven and eight finally ancient secondary testimony on essene economic practices is discussed the book breaks new ground in arguing for several biblical rationales for the practice of shared wealth its integration of archaeological and documentary evidence sheds surprising new light on the economic organization of the qumran community this review provides a snapshot of the state of art of school feeding programmes in 14 of the 15 caricom member states it provides an overview of the different models of school feeding programmes that currently exist in the caribbean challenges faced and recommendations for improvement among the aspects evaluated include the governance structure nutritional quality of meal served linkages with small farmers for the procurement of products used in the meals involvement of children in school gardens related activities etc the document includes a case study for each of the participating countries namely antigua and barbuda bahamas barbados belize dominica grenada guyana haiti jamaica st kitts and nevis st lucia st vincent and the grenadines suriname and trinidad and tobago for each of these countries an annual net benefit analysis was conducted using information collected in 2017 the aim is that the document can provide preliminary information and recommendations that can be relevant for governments public organizations donors opinion leaders private sectors and others toward strengthening school feeding programmes in the caribbean it was developed with the support of the university of the west indies and the caribbean agro economic society under the leadership of prof carlisle pemberton and dr hazel paterson andrews thirteenth century england was a special place and time to be a bishop like their predecessors these bishops were key members of the regnal community anointers of kings tenants in chief pastors counsellors scholars diplomats the brothers and friends of kings and barons and the protectors of the weak but now circumstance and personality converged to produce an uncommonly dedicated episcopate dedicated not only to its pastoral mission but also to the defence of the kingdom and the oversight of royal government this cohort was bound by corporate solidarity and a vigorous culture and possessed an authority to reform the king and so influence political events unknown by the episcopates of other kingdoms these bishops were then to place themselves at the heart of the dramatic events of this era under king john and henry iii throughout rebellion civil war and invasion from france and the turbulent years of minority government and henry s early personal rule the bishops acted as peacemakers they supported royal power when it was threatened for the sake of regnal peace but also used their unique authority to reform the king when his illegal actions threatened to provoke his barons to rebellion this changed however between 1258 and 1265

when around half of England's bishops set aside their loyalty to the king and joined a group of magnates led by Simon de Montfort in England's first revolution appropriating royal powers in order to establish conciliar rule. Bishops in the political community of England 1213-1272 examines the interaction between the bishops' actions on the ground and their culture, identity and political thought. In so doing it reveals how the Montfortian bishops were forced to construct a new philosophy of power in the crucible of political crisis and thus presents a new ideal type in the study of politics and political thought.

Spontaneous Ideology: The Post-Independence Integration Endeavor of the East African Community has been punctuated with challenges culminating into the collapse of the 1967-1977 regional organization. The renaissance of the integration agenda since the re-establishment of the regional organization in 1999 has rekindled epistemological debate among scholars and practitioners on the East African community's raison d'être and integration process. This volume is the first of its kind in this ongoing debate that puts into proper context the nexus between the East African citizens and the integration agenda, focusing on the partner states. Case studies in the chapters operationalize the concepts of popular participation, East African-ness, East Africanization, democratization and integration using political, national, constitutional and EAC Treaty communication and awareness dimensions. The authors of the chapters have analyzed the nexus between the EAC citizens and the integration process. The study generally proceeds from the premise that the exclusion of the EAC citizens from exercising their sovereign rights through popular participation undermines the prospects for the institutionalization and consolidation of the EAC identity.

East African-ness, East Africanization, Democratization and Integration: The Italian Diaspora Throughout the World navigates and negotiates various complex and multidirectional language dynamics in order to account for the sociolinguistic processes that have taken place. This book provides a detailed observation of these linguistic dynamics from the point of view of the Italian diaspora in Bedford in the UK. This study on the language behaviour of three generations of Italian residents in Bedford provides empirical data on and highlights the importance of the sociolinguistic examination of English in service encounters. What comes to light in most of the cases analysed is that audience design has a proven influence on the choice of language and repertoire within the speech of the Bedford Italian community. There are not only switches from one language to another but also style shifts in the linguistic repertoire. Throughout this study it becomes clear that speakers freely use the two languages available to their speech community and thanks to their active and passive repertoire they apply a range of linguistic resources from both Italian and English. The volume also uncovers some especially interesting traits in 3rd generation speech involving in particular a rather widespread use of mixed pronunciation. Upon moving past the initial assumption that the adoption of this mixed pronunciation is used to show the younger generation's sense of belonging to the bi-community, a quite different reason emerges closer analysis reveals that due to an increasing feeling of non britishness this linguistic choice may be linked to a deliberate and conscious attempt on their part not to accommodate to british culture and in so doing to distance themselves further from it preface by david britain although restorative justice is probably one of the most talked about topics in contemporary criminology little has been written about how community involvement in restorative justice translates into practice while advocates have presented the community as an essential pillar of restorative justice the rationale for why and how this is the case remains underdeveloped and largely unchallenged this book offers an empirical and theoretical explanation of what community involvement means and what work it does in restorative justice drawing on an empirical case study and the wider sociological literature the role of community in restorative justice examines the involvement of the community in one selected practice of restorative justice and also considers the implications of the english and welsh experience for development of a more coherent framework for operationalizing community involvement in restorative justice practices it is argued that restorative justice programmes need to start from a more concrete and up to date notion of community while operationalizing community involvement they need to acknowledge all at once the importance of place the importance of family links friendship and other social ties and the importance of similar social traits and identities this book is essential reading for students researchers and academics in the fields of criminology criminal justice sociology community studies policy studies social policy and socio legal studies this book will also be valuable reading for a variety of practitioners and policymakers particularly working with restorative justice and youth justice the community in rural america by kenneth p wilkinson is a foundational theoretical work that both defines the interactional approach to the study of the community in rural areas and frames its application to encourage and promote rural community development recognized for its detailed theoretical construction and logic for understanding human interactions this book has been widely adopted and used by researchers extension faculty and community development practitioners for over thirty years presenting wilkinson s groundbreaking work in its original form with a new foreword aimed at clarifying several key concepts in interactional theory this edition of the community in rural america will appeal to new students of the community as well as established scholars in the field this work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it this work is in the public domain in the united states of america and possibly other nations within the united states you may freely copy and distribute this work as no entity individual or corporate has a copyright on the body of the work scholars believe and we concur that this work is important enough to be preserved reproduced and made generally available to the public to ensure a quality reading experience this work has been proofread and republished using a format that seamlessly blends the original graphical elements with text in an
