katie roiphe's stimulating work has made her one of the most talked about cultural critics of her generation now this bracing young writer delves deeply into one of the most layered of subjects marriage drawn in part from the private memoirs personal correspondence and long forgotten journals of the british literary community from 1910 to the second world war here are seven marriages à la mode each rising to the challenge of intimate relations in more or less creative ways jane wells the wife of h g remained his rock despite his decade long relationship with rebecca west among others katherine mansfield had an irresponsible childlike romance with her husband john middleton murry that collapsed under the strain of real life problems vera brittain and george gordon catlin spent years in a semidetached marriage he in america she in england vanessa bell maintained a complicated harmony with the painter duncan grant whom she loved and her husband clive and her sister virginia woolf herself no stranger to marital particularities sustained a brilliant running commentary on the most intimate details of those around her every chapter revolves around a crisis that occurred in each of these marriages as serious as life threatening illness or as seemingly innocuous as a slightly tipsy dinner table conversation and how it was resolved or not resolved in these portraits roiphe brilliantly evokes what are as she says the fluctuations and shifts in attraction the mysteries of lasting affection the endurance and changes in love and the role of friendship in marriage the deeper mysteries at stake in all relationships although the literary circle is widely recognized as a significant feature of renaissance literary culture it has received remarkably little examination in this collection of essays the authors attempt to explain literary circles and cultural communities in renaissance england by exploring both actual and imaginary ways in which they were conceived and the various needs they fulfilled the book also pays considerable attention to larger theoretical issues relating to literary circles the essayists raise important questions about the extent to which literary circles were actual constructs or fictional creations whether illuminating or limiting the circle metaphor itself can be extended or reformulated some of the authors discuss how particular circles actually operated and some question the very concept of the literary circle literary circles and cultural communities in renaissance england will be an important addition to seventeenth century studies this anthology features a wide ranging collection of poems and scenes from novels that stretch from the fifteenth century to the present day from well known texts to others that are less familiar here is london brought to life through the words of many of the greatest writers in the english language page 4 of cover literary circles illuminates the networks of personal connections that fostered exchanges between artists and authors in 19th and early 20th century britain it also investigates the multiple ways in which text and image inform or set up dialogues with each other exploration of what a reading circle approach can offer adult emergent readers and what adult literacy learners can tell us about novel reading leigh hunt's contributions to english literature although downplayed for several decades are now acknowledged by scholars as key to our understanding of the romantic period he was not only a facilitator in his support for the poetry of shelley and keats for example but was also a major contributor in his own right to the literary and political world of the nineteenth century underscoring the literary innovations in his writing during the first three decades of the nineteenth century this text focuses on the selected works that complement the current view of hunt as a romantic writer and show the independence in his critical approach and use of poetic language with an episodic chronological approach this is an important reassessment of hunt's substantial contributions to several different genres providing a fascinating account of the significant impact of his works on audiences during the romantic period adult literacy teachers are constantly searching for effective engaging and distinctly adult ways to develop adult emergent reading and for at least the past two hundred years adults have formed themselves into reading circles to read and discuss novels on a weekly or monthly basis why then are reading circles rarely used or studied in formal adult literacy provision this book explores adult reading development novel reading and reading circles in the context of a wider examination of reading pedagogies and practices in the english speaking world it discusses reading as both an individual and a communal act and investigates the relationship between literature and literacy development practice and pedagogy including a reassessment of the controversial approaches of reading aloud and phonics for adults sam duncan reviews a case study of an adult reading circle in a large london further education college and identifies the wider implications for the teaching and learning of adult emergent reading for the use and understanding of reading circles and for how we understand the novel reading experience world literature thoughts and utterances is the first sustained investigation of two distinctions which are fundamental to all theories of utterance understanding the semantics pragmatics distinction and the distinction between what is explicitly communicated and what is implicitly communicated features the first sustained investigation of both the semantics pragmatics distinction and the distinction between what is explicitly and implicitly communicated in speech a comparative analysis this study examines the interactions of early modern male and female writers within the context of literary circles in particular campbell examines how the querelle des femmes as a discursive rhetorical tradition of praise and blame influenced perceptions of well educated women who were part of literary circles in italy france and england from approximately 1530 to 1650 to gain a better sense of how querelle language and issues were used for or against learned women writers campbell aligns selected works by female and male writers pairing them to analyze how the woman writer responds deflects or rewrites the male writer s ideological script on women she focuses first on the courtesan tullia d aragona s response in her dialogo della infinità di amore to sperone speroni s dialogo di amore and contrasts the actress writer isabella andreini s pastoral la mirtilla with torquato tasso s aminta she then discusses the influence of italian actresses upon the manners and mores of french women of the valois court especially focusing on performative aspects of french women s participation in court and salon rituals to that end she examines the influential salon of the aristocratic learned claud catherine de clermont duchesse de retz who encouraged the writing of positive querelle rhetoric in the form of petrarchan neoplatonic encomiastic poetry to buttress her reputation and that of her female friends next campbell reads louise lab d t de folie et d amour against pontus de tyard s solitaire premier to illustrate the tensions between a traditional and nontraditional querelle stance she then discusses continental influence upon english writers in the context of the sidney circle in england moving to the closet dramas of the sidney circle campbell examines the solidarity these writers demonstrated with nontraditional stances on querelle issues and finally she explores how three generations of english literary circles con robert louis stevenson literary networks and transatlantic publishing in the 1890s investigates stevenson and the geographies of his literary networks during the last years of his life and after his death it profiles a series of figures who worked with stevenson negotiated his publications on both sides of the atlantic wrote for him or were inspired by him using archival material correspondence fiction and biographies it moves across these literary networks it deploys the concept of literary prosthetics to frame its analysis of gatekeepers tastemakers agents collaborators and authorial surrogates in the transatlantic production of stevenson s writing case studies of understudied individuals and broader consideration of the networks they represent contributes to the knowledge of transatlantic publishing in the 1890s understanding of transatlantic culture stevenson studies current interest in the workings of literary communities and in nineteenth century mobility this study examines how george orwell s legacy as a writer developed and the importance of his work both during and after his lifetime john rodgen seeks to bring orwell s work into proper focus while providing insight into the phenomenon of literary fame this book uses models of world literature to present this quintessentially english writer as a pioneering figure in an anglophone welsh literary tradition a controversial reading that contributes to the present day reconfiguration of cultural relations between wales england scotland before 1840 there was little prestige attached to the writing of novels and most english novelists were women by the turn of the 20th century men of letters acclaimed novels as a form of great literature and most successful novelists were men here gaye tuchman examines how men redefined this form of literary expression in this fascinating new exploration of samuel beckett s work pascale casanova argues that beckett s reputation rests on a pervasive misreading of his oeuvre which neglects entirely the literary revolution he instigated reintroducing the historical into the heart of this body of work of books epistemologically as well as geographically and the ways in which they are received the fin de siècle not only designated the end of the victorian epoch but also marked a significant turn towards modernism extraordinary aesthetes critically examines literary and visual artists from england ireland and scotland whose careers in poetry fiction and illustration flourished during the concluding years of the nineteenth century this collection draws special attention to the exceptional contributions that artists poets and novelists made to the cultural world of the late 1880s and 1890s the essays illuminate a range of established increasingly acknowledged and lesser known figures whose contributions to this brief but remarkably intense cultural period warrant close attention such figures include the critically neglected mabel dearmer whose stunning illustrations appear in evelyn sharp s radical fairy tales for children equally noteworthy is the uncompromising short fiction of ella d arcy who played a pivotal role in editing the most famous journal of the 1890s the yellow book the discussion extends to a range of legendary writers including max beerbohm oscar wilde and w b yeats whose works are placed in dialogue with authors who gained prominence during this period bringing women s writing to the fore extraordinary aesthetes rebalances the achievements of artists and writers during the rapidly transforming cultural world of the fin de siècle critics of piers plowman have often behaved as if the great fourteenth century english poem were written by committee written work marks a major shift in orientation by focusing on william langland instead of piers plowman the five original historicist studies collected here are less concerned with searching for langland s identity in medieval records than with examining the marks even scars left on him by the history he touched derek pearsall studies what langland knew about london its geography economics and social life and the way his focus on the city shifted in the course of revising the poem kathryn kerby fulton examines the conditions for authorship and publishing in late fourteenth century england and uncovers evidence of langland s struggles to attract patronage and maintain control over the text and circulation of piers anne middleton s stunning chapter explores how the long shadow of fourteenth century labor laws fell across langland as he reworked his text ralph hanna iii examines the conflicting demands of manual and intellectual labor on the poet while lawrence m clopper uncovers the deep impressions that contemporary controversies about franciscan poverty made on langland and his life work each of the chapters unfolds from langland s apologia the extraordinary autobiographical passage unique to the last of the three distinct versions of piers plowman that have come down to us this book is both a celebration of the life and career of the eminent literary scholar critic and journalist john sutherland and an extension of sutherland s work in various fields including nineteenth and twentieth century anglo american literature the publishing industry and its impact upon creativity and literary puzzles with contributions from over twenty five distinguished critics literary journalists and scholars this book goes beyond merely describing sutherland s work the essayists pay homage to sutherland while also staking their own critical scholarly claims from investigating the publishing dimension victorians major and minor the complexities of dickens and george eliot the archeology of pride and prejudice to examining the implications of shakespearean souvenirs literary puzzles and non victorians the essays offer fresh dimensions to sutherland s rich career as a professor critic and journalist the historical dictionary of romanticism in literature provides a large overview of the romantic movement that seemed at the time to have swept across europe from russia to germany and france to britain and across the atlantic to the united states the romantics saw themselves as inaugurating a new era they frequently referred to themselves or their contemporaries as romantics and their art as romantic from the early stirrings in germany to the last decade of the eighteenth century in england with the political radicals and the lake poets to the transcendental club in massachusetts the leaders of the age acknowledged their new romantic attitudes this volume takes a close and comprehensive look at romanticism in literature through a chronology an introductory essay appendixes and an extensive bibliography the dictionary section has over 800 cross referenced entries on the writers and the poems novels short stories and essays plays and other works they produced the leading trends techniques journals and literary circles and the spirit of the times are also covered this book is an excellent access point for students researchers and anyone wanting to know more romanticism in literature a new historical approach to indian english literature mary ellis gibson shows that poetry not fiction was the dominant literary genre of indian writing in english until 1860 and that poetry written in colonial situations can tell us as much or even more about figuration multilingual literacies and histories culture of female classical literacy that emerged in the second half of the nineteenth century during the formation of women s colleges on both sides of the atlantic why did victorian women of letters desire to learn ancient greek a dead language written in a strange alphabet and no longer spoken in the words of elizabeth barrett browning they wrote some greek upon the margin lady s greek without the accents yet in the margins of classical scholarship they discovered other ways of knowing and not knowing greek mediating between professional philology and the popularization of classics these passionate amateurs became an important medium for classical transmission combining archival research on the entry of women into greek studies in victorian england and america with a literary interest in their translations of greek tragedy prins demonstrates how women turned to this genre to perform a passion for ancient greek full of eros and pathos she focuses on five tragedies agamemnon prometheus bound electra hippolytus and the bacchae to analyze a wide range of translational practices by women and to explore the ongoing legacy of ladies greek key figures in this story include barrett browning and virginia woolf janet case and jane harrison edith hamilton and eva palmer and a mary f robinson and h d the book also features numerous illustrations including photographs of beautifully observed account of island peoples and their life but above all it is the story of the beginning of louis s love affair with the pacific this collection covers the lyrical poetry of mary shelley as well as her writings for lardner s cabinet cyclopaedia of biography and some other materials only recently attributed to her in 1864 amid headline grabbing heresy trials members of the british association for the advancement of science were asked to sign a declaration affirming that science and scripture were in agreement many criticized the new test of orthodoxy nine decided that collaborative action was required the x club tells their story these six ambitious professionals and three wealthy amateurs j d hooker t h huxley john tyndall john lubbock william spottiswoode edward frankland george busk t a hirst and herbert spencer wanted to guide the development of science and public opinion on issues where science impinged on daily life religious belief and politics they formed a private dining club which they named the x club to discuss and further their plans as ruth barton shows they had a clear objective they wanted to promote scientific habits of mind which they sought to do through lectures journalism and science education they devoted enormous effort to the expansion of science education with real but mixed success for twenty years the x club was the most powerful network in victorian science the men succeeded each other in the presidency of the royal society for a dozen years barton s group biography traces the roots of their success and the lasting effects of their championing of science against those who attempted to limit or control it along the way shedding light on the social organization of science the interactions of science and the state and the places of science and scientific men in elite culture in the victorian era a comprehensive accessible and lucid coverage of major issues and key figures in modern and contemporary british literature this volume charts the rise of professional women writers across diverse fields of intellectual enquiry and through different modes of writing in the period immediately before and during the reign of queen victoria it demonstrates how between 1830 and 1880 the woman writer became an agent of cultural formation and contestation appealing to and enabling the growth of female readership while issuing a challenge to the authority of male writers and critics of especial importance were changing definitions of marriage family and nation of class and of morality as well as new conceptions of sexuality and gender and of sympathy and sensation the result is a richly textured account of a radical and complex process of feminization whereby formal innovations in the different modes of writing by women became central to the aesthetic social and political formation of british culture and society in the nineteenth century

Derelicts 2022-09-04 Thoughts and Utterances is the first sustained investigation of two distinctions which are fundamental to all theories of utterance: understanding the semantics/pragmatics distinction and the distinction between what is explicitly communicated and what is implicitly communicated. Features the first sustained investigation of both the semantics/pragmatics distinction and the distinction between what is explicitly and implicitly communicated in speech.

Thoughts and Utterances 2008-04-15 a comparative analysis. This study examines the interactions of early modern male and female writers within the context of literary circles. In particular, Campbell examines how the querelle des femmes as a discursive rhetorical tradition of praise and blame influenced perceptions of well-educated women who were part of literary circles in Italy, France, and England from approximately 1530 to 1650. To gain a better sense of how querelle language and issues were used for or against learned women writers, Campbell aligns selected works by female and male writers, pairing them to analyze how the woman writer responds, deflects, or rewrites the male writer's ideological script on women. She focuses first on the courtesan Tullia d'Aragona's response in her Dialogo della infinità di amore to Sperone Speroni's Dialogo di amore and contrasts the actress-writer Isabella Andreini's Pastorale la Mirtilla with Torquato Tasso's Aminta. She then discusses the influence of Italian actresses upon the manners and mores of French women of the Valois court, especially focusing on performative aspects of French women's participation in court and salon rituals. To that end, she examines the influential salon of the aristocratic learned Claude Catherine de Clermont, Duchesse de Retz, who encouraged the writing of positive querelle rhetoric in the form of Petrarchan Neoplatonic encomiastic poetry to buttress her reputation and that of her female friends. Next, Campbell reads Louise Labé's Amour against Pontus de Tyard's Solitaire Premier to illustrate the tensions between a traditional and nontraditional querelle stance. She then discusses continental influence upon English writers in the context of the Sidney Circle in England, moving to the closet dramas of the Sidney Circle. Campbell examines the solidarity these writers demonstrated with nontraditional stances on querelle issues and finally she explores how three generations of English literary circles con-

Literary Circles and Gender in Early Modern Europe 2018-01-18 Robert Louis Stevenson. Literary Networks and Transatlantic Publishing in the 1890s investigates Stevenson and the geographies of his literary networks during the last years of his life and after his death. It profiles a series of figures who worked with Stevenson, negotiated his publications on both sides of the Atlantic, wrote for him, or were inspired by him, using archival material, correspondence, fiction, and biographies. It moves across these literary networks, it deploys the concept of literary prosthetics to frame its analysis of gatekeepers, tastemakers, agents, collaborators, and authorial surrogates in the transatlantic production of Stevenson's writing. Case studies of understudied individuals and broader consideration of the networks they represent contribute to the knowledge of transatlantic publishing in the 1890s, understanding of transatlantic culture, Stevenson studies, current interest in the workings of literary communities, and in nineteenth-century mobility.

Robert Louis Stevenson, Literary Networks and Transatlantic Publishing in The 1890s 2020-01-14 This study examines how George Orwell's legacy as a writer developed and the importance of his work both during and after his lifetime. Edward Thomas and World Literary Studies 2013-07-15 Before 1840 there was little prestige attached to the writing of novels, and most English novelists were women. By the turn of the 20th century, men of letters acclaimed novels as a form of great literature, and most successful novelists were men. Here, Gaye Tuchman examines how men redefined this form of literary expression.

Edging Women Out 2012 In this fascinating new exploration of Samuel Beckett's work, Pascale Casanova argues that Beckett's reputation rests on a pervasive misreading of his oeuvre, which neglects entirely the literary revolution he instigated: reintroducing the historical into the heart of this body of work. Casanova provides an arresting portrait of Beckett as radically subversive, doing for writing what Kandinsky did for art, and in the process presents the key to some of the most profound enigmas of Beckett's writing.

The English Heritage Guide to London's Blue Plaques 2016-10-27 the geography of the book is as old as the history of the book though far less thoroughly explored yet research has increasingly pointed to the spatial dimensions of book history to the transformation of texts as they are made and moved from place to place from authors to readers and within different communities and cultures of reception widespread recognition of the significance of place of the effects of movement over space and of the importance of location to the making and reception of print culture has been a feature of recent book history work and draws in many instances upon studies within the history of science as well as geography geographies of the book explores the complex relationships between the making of books in certain geographical contexts the movement of books epistemologically as well as geographically and the ways in which they are received

Geographies of the Book 2012-11-28 the fin de siècle not only designated the end of the victorian epoch but also marked a significant turn towards modernism extraordinary aesthetes critically examines literary and visual artists from england ireland and scotland whose careers in poetry fiction and illustration flourished during the concluding years of the nineteenth century this collection draws special attention to the exceptional contributions that artists poets and novelists made to the cultural world of the late 1880s and 1890s the essays illuminate a range of established increasingly acknowledged and lesser known figures whose contributions to this brief but remarkably intense cultural period warrant close attention such figures include the critically neglected mabel dearnier whose stunning illustrations appear in evelyn sharp s radical fairy tales for children equally noteworthy is the uncompromising short fiction of ella d arcy who played a pivotal role in editing the most famous journal of the 1890s the yellow book the discussion extends to a range of legendary writers including max beerbohm oscar wilde and w b yeats whose works are placed in dialogue with authors who gained prominence during this period bringing women s writing to the fore extraordinary aesthetes rebalances the achievements of artists and writers during the rapidly transforming cultural world of the fin de siècle

Extraordinary Aesthetes 2023-04-14 critics of piers plowman have often behaved as if the great fourteenth century english poem were written by committee written work marks a major shift in orientation by focusing on william langland instead of piers plowman the five original historicist studies collected here are less concerned with searching for langland s identity in medieval records than with examining the marks even scars left on him by the history he touched derek pearsall studies what langland knew about london its geography economics and social life and the way his focus on the city shifted in the course of revising the poem kathryn kerby fulton examines the conditions for authorship and publishing in late fourteenth century england and uncovers evidence of langland s struggles to attract patronage and maintain control over the text and circulation of piers anne middleton s stunning chapter explores how the long shadow of fourteenth century labor laws fell across langland as he reworked his text ralph hanna iii examines the conflicting demands of manual and intellectual labor on the poet while lawrence m clopper uncovers the deep impressions that contemporary controversies about franciscan poverty made on langland and his life work each of the chapters unfolds from langland s apologia the extraordinary autobiographical passage unique to the last of the three distinct versions of piers plowman that have come down to us succeeded each other in the presidency of the royal society for a dozen years barton s group biography traces the roots of their success and the lasting effects of their championing of science against those who attempted to limit or control it along the way shedding light on the social organization of science the interactions of science and the state and the places of science and scientific men in elite culture in the victorian era

The Critic 2013-08-06 a comprehensive accessible and lucid coverage of major issues and key figures in modern and contemporary british literature

In The South Seas Hb 2022-07-30 this volume charts the rise of professional women writers across diverse fields of intellectual enquiry and through different modes of writing in the period immediately before and during the reign of queen victoria it demonstrates how between 1830 and 1880 the woman writer became an agent of cultural formation and contestation appealing to and enabling the growth of female readership while issuing a challenge to the authority of male writers and critics of especial importance were changing definitions of marriage family and nation of class and of morality as well as new conceptions of sexuality and gender and of sympathy and sensation the result is a richly textured account of a radical and complex process of feminization whereby formal innovations in the different modes of writing by women became central to the aesthetic social and political formation of british culture and society in the nineteenth century
