The Great Ape Project 1996-11-01 h g wells s view of the world and hence his writing was strongly influenced by the biologist s training he received during his three years as a student at the normal school of science south kensington now imperial college london those things which a creature needs in order for it and its species to thrive get particular attention in wells s books tracing biological themes through wells s work as peter kemp does here shows the pattern of his thought and brings to light the bizarre workings of a fascinating imagination for the book s reissue in paperback an afterword has been added

The Woman and the Ape 2016-07-27 the second world war should have been dead and buried but trouble always comes from those allowed to escape the waffen ss is alive and kicking having remained underground for decades hidden by sympathisers in south america a new breed of soldier begins to make itself felt assassinations become every day occurrences in certain parts of the world then strange things begin to happen yet the main powers still slumber in the sure knowledge that they are supreme realisation comes too late for some but not for one or two men who will not easily be deterred

H. G. Wells and the Culminating Ape 2014-05-10 human beings are incredibly diverse from appearance and language to culture how do we understand this diversity as a product of evolution and migration over millions of years in this book peter bellwood brings together biology archaeology linguistics and anthropology to provide a sweeping look at human evolution from 5 million years ago to the rise of agriculture and civilization presenting modern human diversity as a product of the shared history of human populations around the world bellwood opens the book by explaining what allows us to understand and reconstruct the human past including the importance of archaeological biological and cultural approaches as well as an understanding of climate and chronology on vast time scales from there he proceeds forward in time from the split with chimpanzees c 6 million years ago the emergence of homo 2 5 million years ago and the appearance of modern humans c 300 000 years ago each chapter is driven by a set of major questions that we have new answers to such as when did human
