the amount and range of information available to today s students and indeed to all learners is unprecedented if the characteristics of the information age demand new conceptions of commerce national security and publishing among other things it is logical to assume that they carry implications for education as well little has been written however about how the specific affordances of these technologies and the kinds of information they allow students to access and create relate to the central purpose of education learning what does learning mean in an information rich environment what are its characteristics what kinds of tasks should it involve what concepts strategies attitudes and skills do educators and students need to master if they are to learn effectively and efficiently in such an environment how can researchers theorists and practitioners foster the well founded and widespread development of such key elements of the learning process this second edition continues these discussions and suggests some tentative answers drawing primarily from research and theory in three distinct but related fields learning theory instructional systems design and information studies it presents a way to think about learning that responds directly to the actualities of a world brimming with information the second edition also includes insights from digital and critical literacies and provides a combination of an updated research and theory base and a collection of instructional scenarios for helping teachers and librarians implement each step of the i learn model the book could be used in courses in teacher preparation academic librarian preparation and school librarian preparation
