these poems selected from the past three decades are firmly rooted in what richard wilbur called the hunks and colors of the world they faithfully try to take into account a world we did not make and at the same time record the terrifying and painful contradictions of human experience and finally they try to do so while remaining open to the intrinsic joy of being these are poems rooted in the belief that words can invoke those presences which bring us back again and again to the fundamental experience of being that there is something rather than nothing the poems in a word in my mouth embody as czeslaw milosz puts it the double life of our common human circumstance as beings in between the dust that we are and the divinity to which we would aspire a terrible thing happened to me perhaps that is an oversimplification but it will have to do i realized that there were a lot of things going on a lot of loose threads that are untying further of course i was in a process of magnificent unraveling to realize this i don t recommend trying that by the way anyhow you are probably aware that everything is a story the irresistible need for denouement may bring a story together but it also unties something else somewhere else all stories all books are born from one another this one is born from the one that came before it they are an infinite and ancient line of irrational call and response never ending that is until now until it is all tied back together an act of surgical theft cut paste cauterize rebirth this is an epilogue an apocalypse and an alchemical allegory it is a tying together of things to try and stop the unraveling the addiction to the denouement which lurks at the center of contemporary culture at the black heart of all entertainment and all stories including our own

Commentary on the Holy Scriptures 1872

charles bowden has been an outspoken advocate for the desert southwest since the 1970s recently his activism helped persuade the u s government to create the sonoran desert national monument in southern arizona but in working for environmental preservation bowden refuses to be one who outline s something straightforward a manifesto with clear rules and a set of plans for others to follow in this deeply personal book he brings the sonoran desert alive not as a place where well meaning people can go to enjoy nature but as a raw reality that defies bureaucratic and even literary attempts to define it that can only be experienced through the senses inferno burns with charles bowden s passion for the desert he calls home i want to eat the dirt and lick the rock or leave the shade for the sun and feel the burning i know i don t belong here but this is the only place i belong he says his vivid descriptions complemented by michael berman s acutely observed photographs of the sonoran desert make readers feel the heat and smell the dryness see the colors in earth and sky and hear the singing of dry bones across the parched ground written as an antibiotic during the time bowden was lobbying the government to create the sonoran desert national monument inferno repudiates both the propaganda and the lyricism of contemporary nature writing instead it persuades us that we need these places not to remember our better selves or our natural self or our spiritual self we need these places to taste what we fear and devour what we are we need these places to be animals because unless we are animals we are nothing at all that is the price of being a civilized dude
