this book examines the intersection of trauma and the gothic in six contemporary british novels martin amis's london fields margaret drabble's the gates of ivory ian mcewan's atonement pat barker's regeneration and double vision and kazuo ishiguro's never let me go in these works the gothic functions

both as an expression of societal violence at the turn of the twenty first century and as a response to the related crisis of representation brought about by the contemporary individual's highly mediated and spectatorial relationship to this violence by locating these six novels within the gothic tradition this work argues that each text to borrow a term from jacques derrida participates in the gothic in ways that both uphold the paradigm of unspeakability that has come to dominate much trauma fiction as well as push its boundaries to complicate how we think of the ethical relationship between witnessing and writing trauma
