when he died in 1946 flight lieutenant jack mossop left behind a widow and child a chest full of medals and a diary he was 25 years old the diary gave tantalizing glimpses of his career sixty years on his son has uncovered the truth it is the story of an ordinary durham lad called upon to perform extraordinary deeds serving initially as a wireless operator in 49 squadron he progressed to 76 squadron under the legendary leonard cheshire and finished as a deputy master bomber with the elite pathfinder group in 35 squadron to complete even one tour of duty was against the odds to complete a second and then to volunteer for a third was nigh on incredible small wonder that one of his crewmates called him the bravest man i ever knew it is all the more tragic that he died a civilians death on board a boac lancastrian after the war in suspicious circumstances which attracted the attention of the prime minister himself jack saw most of the great actions of bomber command from the 1 000 bomber raids of 1942 to the battles of the ruhr and berlin in 1943 and the daylight operations of normandy before and after d day his story stands as a microcosm of the entire bomber campaign bill robinsons account is a fascinating and stirring account of courage in war a tribute not only to one mans courage but also to the courage of the nameless thousands whose stories will now never be told in both the uk and the us there is a sense of dissatisfaction and pessimism about the state of urban environments particularly with the quality of everyday public spaces explanations for this have emphasized the poor quality of design that characterizes many new public spaces spaces that are dominated by parking roads infrastructure introspective buildings a lack of enclosure and a poor sense of place and which in different ways for different groups are too often exclusionary yet many well designed public spaces have also experienced decline and neglect as the services and activities upon which the continuing quality of those spaces have been subject to the same constraints and pressures for change as public services in general these issues touch upon the daily management of public space that is the coordination of the many different activities that constantly define and redefine the characteristics and quality of public space this book draws on three empirical projects to examine the questions of public space management on an international stage they are set within a context of theoretical debates about public space its history contemporary patterns of use and changing nature in western society and about the new management approaches that are increasingly being adopted most ministry of defence projects funded by pfi deals are delivered satisfactorily on time and on budget in six of the eight projects examined by the nao the department has generally achieved value for money through effective allocation and management of risks failures to identify and manage risks reduced the value for money achieved from the other two projects reviewed by the nao most mod pfi projects are now providing important support to military and civilian staff they cover a portfolio of more than 50 projects delivering a broad range of services such as equipment buildings training and communications the department has developed commercial disciplines for scrutinising the value for money of its pfi procurements and has extended these into other projects while the mod allocates and manages many of the project risks effectively it does not always have the robust data necessary to understand the risks it is asking the private sector to bear in at least seven projects the decision to use pfi has been reversed overall the pfi projects surveyed took an average of 37 months to procure compared with the pfi average across government of 34 months and larger pfi projects with a capital value over 50 million took the mod an average of 45 months to procure this longer procurement time reflects the complexity and special requirements of the department s projects but there is scope for the department to improve the speed at which it closes larger deals it is seeking to do so through improvements to the oversight of its capital procurements the nao also highlight the risk that contractors may incorrectly report performance which would otherwise lead to payment deductions
