in this deeply etched and haunting memoir vivian gornick tells the story of her lifelong battle with her mother for independence there have been numerous books about mother and daughter but none has dealt with this closest of filial relations as directly or as ruthlessly gornick s groundbreaking book confronts what edna o brien has called the prinicipal crux of female despair the unacknowledged oedipal nature of the mother daughter bond born and raised in the bronx the daughter of urban peasants gornick grows up in a household dominated by her intelligent but uneducated mother s romantic depression over the early death of her husband next door lives nettie an attractive widow whose calculating sensuality appeals greatly to vivian these women with their opposing models of femininity continue well into adulthood to affect gornick s struggle to find herself in love and in work as gornick walks with her aged mother through the streets of new york arguing and remembering the past each wins the reader s admiration the caustic and clear thinking daughter for her courage and tenacity in really talking to her mother about the most basic issues of their lives and the still powerful and intuitively wise old woman who again and again proves herself her daughter s mother unsparing deeply courageous fierce attachments is one of the most remarkable documents of family feeling that has been written a classic that helped start the memoir boom and remains one of the most moving examples of the genre a new york times notable book for 2015 vivian gornick loves to walk to absorb the drama humor and humanity of the new york city streets to see the fifty different ways people struggle to remain human after a lifetime of navigating the city on her own terms gornick uses the metropolis as both her mirror and her muse as she examines her fiercely independent life along with the dilemma of connection in our time her closest walking companion is leonard a gay man with whom she has a long standing relationship that is as gratifying as it is contentious as her discussions with leonard play in her mind she dismantles the idea of the anonymous city finding solace on a crowded bus among the pundits in times square and watching a bank of lights go on at dusk in an adjacent apartment building i have lived out my conflicts not my fantasies she writes and so has new york we are at one engaging with a city that challenges inspires and sometimes thwarts a single woman the odd woman and the city is a deeply moving ode to gotham and to the friendships and encounters that invigorate and ground a life in the city for nearly fifty years vivian gornick s essays written with her characteristic clarity of perception and vibrant prose have explored feminism and writing literature and culture politics and personal experience drawing writing from the course of her career taking a long look illuminates one of the driving themes behind gornick s work that the painful process of understanding one s self is what binds us to the larger world in these essays gornick explores the lives and literature of alfred kazin mary mccarthy diana trilling philip roth joan didion and herman melville the cultural impact of silent spring and uncle tom s cabin and the characters you might only find in a new york barber shop or midtown bus terminal even more all that is given brings back into print her incendiary essays first published in the village voice championing the emergence of the women s liberation movement of the 1970s alternately crackling with urgency or lucid with insight the essays in taking a long look demonstrate one of america s most beloved critics at her best this book is an intimate account of the relationship between the author and the civil rights icon rev dr c t vivian the two men were neighbors for 27 years before vivian s transition in july 2020 they often shared dinners where vivian mentored the author and explained insight into the strategy used by dr martin luther king jr during the turbulent 1960s it traces vivian s life after he left the southern christian leadership conference in 1965 until his transition

a finalist for the national book critics circle award for criticism vivian gornick s the end of the novel of love explores the meaning of love and marriage as literary themes in the twentieth century in the end of the novel of love an acclaimed and provocative collection of criticism gornick applies the same intelligence honesty and insight that define her memoirs to an analysis of love and marriage as literary themes in the twentieth century she examines the work and lives of several authors she admires including grace paley willa cather jean rhys george meredith jane smiley richard ford and andre dubus to ultimately posit that love sexual fulfillment and marriage are now exhausted as the metaphorical expressions of success and happiness spanning the depths of common experience and the expanse of twentieth century literature gornick crafts an argument that is as defined by discourse as it is by the power of her language which is gracefully poised between objective knowledge and subjective experience in these eleven essays she comes to see that for most writers like most readers it is the drama of our angry and frightened selves in the presence of love that is our modern preoccupation the end of the novel of love is a strikingly original and thought provoking collection from a canonical critic

Taking A Long Look 1928

seminal essays on loneliness living in new york friendship feminism and writing from nonfiction master vivian gornick vivian gornick s approaching eye level is a brave collection of personal essays that finds a quintessentially contemporary woman urban single feminist trying to observe herself and the world without sentiment cynicism or nostalgia whether walking along the streets of new york or teaching writing at a university gornick is a woman exploring her need for conversation and connection with men and women colleagues and strangers she recalls her stint as a waitress in the catskills and a failed friendship with an older woman and mentor and reconsiders her experiences in the feminist movement while living alone and in marriage turning her trademark sharp eye on herself gornick works to see her part in things how she has both welcomed and avoided contact and how these attempts at connections have enlivened and at times defeated her first published in 1996 approaching eye level is an unrelentingly honest collection of essays that finds gornick at her best reminding us that we can come to know ourselves only by engaging fully with the world the rise of the memoir traces the growth and extraordinarily wide appeal of the memoir its territory is private rather than public life shame guilt and embarrassment not the achievements celebrated in the public record what accounts for the sharp need writers like rousseau woolf orwell nabokov primo levi and maxine hong kingston felt to write and to publish such works when they might more easily have chosen to remain silent alex zwerdling explores why each of these writers felt compelled to write them as that story can be reconstructed from personal materials available in archival collections what internal conflicts they encountered while trying and how each of them resisted the private and public pressures to stop themselves rather than pursuing this confessional route against their own doubts without a reasonable expectation that such works would be welcome in print and eventually find an empathetic audience reconstructing this process in which a dubious project eventually becomes a compelling product a memoir that will last illuminates both what was at stake and why this serially invented open form has reshaped the expectations of readers who welcomed a vital alternative to the official story
