french literature scholar richard burton examines nine of messiaen s works in the context of the broader french catholic intellectual tradition drawing on an expansive knowledge of the catholic literature and the surrealist tradition burton reveals that messiaen s middle period compositions are filled with intertextual references to the bible and other theological writings which messiaen given his reputation for falsifying facts may have gone to great lengths to obscure as a catholic messiaen is presented as somewhat removed from the ethos of his time and place taking no part in the social side of catholicism that found expression in the pétainist litany of patrie famille travail rather messiaen regarded himself as having a vertical relationship with god which could make him seem unworldly and even uncaring with insights into the artistic careers of messiaen s notable contemporaries and historical perspectives on the breakdown of french politics during world war ii burton creates a vivid picture of the previously unexamined spiritual and philosophical inspirations behind messiaen s pivotal mid century compositions reproduction of the original history of the warfare of science with technology in christendom by andrew dickson white among those masses of cathedral sculpture which preserve so much of medieval theology one frequently recurring group is noteworthy for its presentment of a time honoured doctrine regarding the origin of the universe the almighty in human form sits benignly making the sun moon and stars and hanging them from the solid firmament which supports the heaven above and overarches the earth beneath the furrows of thought on the creator s brow show that in this work he is obliged to contrive the knotted muscles upon his arms show that he is obliged to toil naturally then the sculptors and painters of the medieval and early modern period frequently represented him as the writers whose conceptions they embodied had done as on the seventh day weary after thought and toil enjoying well earned repose and the plaudits of the hosts of heaven in these thought fossils of the cathedrals and in other revelations of the same idea through sculpture painting glass staining mosaic work and engraving during the middle ages and the two centuries following culminated a belief which had been developed through thousands of years and which has determined the world s thought until our own time its beginnings lie far back in human history we find them among the early records of nearly all the great civilizations and they hold a most prominent place in the various sacred books of the world in nearly all of them is revealed the conception of a creator of whom man is an imperfect image and who literally and directly created the visible universe with his hands and fingers among these theories of especial interest to us are those which controlled theological thought in chaldaea the assyrian inscriptions which have been recently recovered and given to the english speaking peoples by layard george smith sayce and others show that in the ancient religions of chaldaea and babylonia there was elaborated a narrative of the creation which in its most important features must have been the source of that in our own sacred books it has now become perfectly clear that from the same sources which inspired the accounts of the creation of the universe among the chaldeo babylonian the assyrian the phoenician and other ancient civilizations came the ideas which hold so prominent a place in the sacred books of the hebrews in the two accounts imperfectly fused together in genesis and also in the account of which we have indications in the book of job and in the proverbs there is presented often with the greatest sublimity the same early conception of the creator and of the creation the conception so natural in the childhood of civilization of a creator who is an enlarged human being working literally with his own hands and of a creation which is the work of his fingers to supplement this view there was developed the belief in this creator as one who having from his ample palm launched forth the rolling planets into space sits on high enthroned upon the circle of the heavens perpetually controlling and directing them popular science gives our readers the information and tools to improve their technology and their world the core belief that popular science and our readers share the future is going to be better and science and technology are the driving forces that will help make it better previous criticism has not adequately discussed oriental aspects of the content of shakespearean drama in addition to his portrayal of oriental figures such as cleopatra othello and shylock and his use of literary genres and motifs that have roots in oriental tradition such as that of the tragic romance in romeo and juliet there are certain key elements in shakespeare s thought and outlook that can barbara newman contends is a mistake these goddesses are neither pagan survivals nor versions of the great goddess constructed in archetypal psychology but distinctive creations of the christian imagination as emanations of the divine mediators between god and the cosmos embodied universals and ravishing objects of identification and desire medieval goddesses transformed and deepened christendom s concept of god introducing religious possibilities beyond the ambit of scholastic theology and bringing them to vibrant imaginative life building a bridge between secular and religious conceptions of allegorized female power newman advances such questions as whether medieval writers believed in their goddesses and if so in what manner she investigates whether the personifications encountered in poetic fictions can be distinguished from those that appear in religious visions and questions how medieval writers reconcile their statements about the multiple daughters of god with orthodox devotion to the son of god furthermore she examines why forms of feminine god talk that strike many christians today as subversive or heretical did not threaten medieval churchmen weaving together such disparate texts as the writings of latin and vernacular poets medieval schoolmen liturgists and male and female mystics and visionaries god and the goddesses is a direct challenge to modern theologians to reconsider the role of goddesses in the christian tradition among those masses of cathedral sculpture which preserve so much of medieval theology one frequently recurring group is noteworthy for its presentment of a time honoured doctrine regarding the origin of the universe the almighty in human form sits benignly making the sun moon and stars and hanging them from the solid firmament which supports the heaven above and overarches the earth beneath the furrows of thought on the creator s brow show that in this work he is obliged to contrive the knotted muscles upon his arms show that he is obliged to toil naturally then the sculptors and painters of the medieval and early modern period frequently represented him as the writers whose conceptions they embodied had done as on the seventh day weary after thought and toil enjoying well earned repose and the plaudits of the hosts of heaven in these thought fossils of the cathedrals and in other revelations of the same idea through sculpture painting glass staining mosaic work and engraving during the middle ages and the two centuries following culminated a belief which had been developed through thousands of years and which has determined the world s thought until our own time its beginnings lie far back in human history we find them among the early records of nearly all the great civilizations and they hold a most prominent place in the various sacred books of the world in nearly all of them is revealed the conception of a creator of whom man is an imperfect image and who literally and directly created the visible universe with his hands and fingers among these theories of especial interest to us are those which controlled theological thought in chaldaea the assyrian inscriptions which have been recently recovered and given to the english speaking peoples by layard george smith sayce and others show that in the ancient religions of chaldaea and babylonia there was elaborated a narrative of the creation which in its most important features must have been the source of that in our own sacred books it has now become perfectly clear that from the same sources which inspired the accounts of the creation of the universe among the chaldeo babylonian the assyrian the phoenician and other ancient civilizations came the ideas which hold so prominent a place in the sacred books of the hebrews in the two accounts imperfectly fused together in genesis and also in the account of which we have indications in the book of job and in the proverbs there is presented often with the greatest sublimity the same early conception of the creator and of the creation the conception so natural in the childhood of civilization of a creator who is an enlarged human being working literally with his own hands and of a creation which is the work of his fingers to supplement this view there was developed the belief in this creator as one who having from his ample palm launched forth the rolling planets into space sits on high enthroned upon the circle of the heavens perpetually controlling and directing them the stories of the grail tradition with their tests trials and initiations are a part of the arthurian tradition and lead towards the discovery of the elusive secret of what the holy grail truly is the elements of the grail traditions answers

contrary to popular belief the medieval religious imagination did not restrict itself to masculine images of god but envisaged the divine in multiple forms in fact the god of medieval christendom was the father of only one son but many daughters including lady philosophy lady love dame nature and eternal wisdom god and the goddesses is a study in medieval imaginative theology examining the numerous daughters of god who appear in allegorical poems theological fictions and the visions of holy women we have tended to understand these deities as mere personifications and poetic figures but that barbara newman contends is a mistake these goddesses are neither pagan survivals nor versions of the great goddess constructed in archetypal psychology but distinctive creations of the christian imagination as emanations of the divine mediators between god and the cosmos embodied universals and ravishing objects of identification and desire medieval goddesses transformed and deepened christendom s concept of god introducing religious possibilities beyond the ambit of scholastic theology and bringing them to vibrant imaginative life building a bridge between secular and religious conceptions of allegorized female power newman advances such questions as whether medieval writers believed in their goddesses and if so in what manner she investigates whether the personifications encountered in poetic fictions can be distinguished from those that appear in religious visions and questions how medieval writers reconcile their statements about the multiple daughters of god with orthodox devotion to the son of god furthermore she examines why forms of feminine god talk that strike many christians today as subversive or heretical did not threaten medieval churchmen weaving together such disparate texts as the writings of latin and vernacular poets medieval schoolmen liturgists and male and female mystics and visionaries god and the goddesses is a direct challenge to modern theologians to reconsider the role of goddesses in the christian tradition
