Information Retrieval 2015-12-09

Information Retrieval is a field of study that deals with the process of finding, evaluating, and using information. It is a multidisciplinary field that draws on concepts and methods from computer science, library science, and communication studies. The primary goal of information retrieval is to help users find the information they need in a timely and effective manner. This involves understanding the user's information needs, identifying relevant sources, and presenting the information in a way that is easy to understand and use. Information retrieval systems are used in a wide variety of contexts, including libraries, search engines, and online databases. The field is constantly evolving as new technologies and methods are developed to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of information retrieval.
