Comparative Advantage in International Trade

2012-12-06

traditional trade theory explains trade only by differences between countries notably differences in their relative endowments of factors of production it suggests an inverse relationship between the similarity of countries and the volume of trade between them the heckscher ohlin ho factor proportions theory derives the determinants of comparative advantage in a world of two goods two factors two countries it predicts that each country will export that good which uses the country's abundant factor relatively most intensively the literature on trade offers an impressive number of studies based on the ho theory the main methodological problems encountered in the literature are first the appropriate formulation of the ho theorem in a multi factor multi good and multi country framework second proper tests of the ho theory and proper links of the theory to empirical analysis the relevance of the ho theory began to be questioned when important facts of modern international trade proved to be inconsistent with its theoretical framework leontief 1953 tested the factor proportions theory using the us data for 1947 and found that the us had more labor intensive exports than imports which is opposed to both perceptions and estimations of factor endowments the leontief paradox created doubt as to whether or not actual trade patterns and factor endowments are related as predicted by theory and caused many controversial discussions with regard to the proper empirical implementation of the factor proportions theory this up to date synthesis of the basic tools and survey results in international trade theory is unique in giving factor mobility equal billing with goods trade highlighting factor flows in the context of a mainstream approach to trade theory the importance of the international flow of factors has grown in recent decades primarily because of increasing returns imperfect competition multinational corporations and labor migration theories of factor mobility and trade in goods can no longer be lumped together using sophisticated techniques as well as simple economic intuitions and easy to follow diagrams kar yiu wong systematically presents within unified frameworks all the basic analytical techniques involved in the theories of international trade and factor mobility wong also provides extensive coverage of such issues as interactions between international trade in goods and capital movement external economies of scale monopolistic competition and differentiated products oligopoly welfare economics of international trade and policy analysis for various models and he devotes two separate chapters to multinational corporations and international labor migration new techniques and approaches to these issues are suggested and new results obtained for many of them for instance the discussion of intra industry trade in the presence of positive transport cost and arbitrage is new as is the systematic examination of the relationship between international trade in goods and factor mobility with external economies of scale monopolistic competition and oligopoly of particular importance to trade theorists these issues serve as the link between neoclassical and imperfect competition models external relations law of the european community begins by noting two common characteristics of legal analyses in the field of eu external relations first most legal analyses assume that ec external relations law cannot be studied or applied without a constant awareness of the underlying political dynamics yet the same analyses fail to explain how these dynamics are to be understood assessed and systematically applied second most legal analyses tend to focus only on narrow segments of the ecj s case law often taking as their points of departure individual cases or a group of topically related cases this commentary approach disregards the general inter connectedness of legal structures and the recurring meaning configurations in the field against this backdrop the author sets out to strengthen the legal language both theoretically and practically in the field of ec external relations the first two parts of the book provide with extensive references an in depth legal analysis of a wide range of topics pertaining to the distribution between the ec and the member states of norm setting authority in their external relations i e the rules that determine what the ec and the member states can do individually or together in international relations and the reception and application of rules of international law within the community area including the way in which international law enters community law in these parts of the book the aim is to reconstruct the core areas of the community s external relations law in a coherent and systematic manner in the third part of the book the author develops and applies a theoretical and methodological framework inspired by discourse analysis this novel approach is used to identify and describe some of the most significant legal discourses in ec external relations seen from a methodological point of view the practice of economic science includes critical and theoretical thinking the specific nature of these fields of study their limitations and mutual adjustment have been covered by us elsewhere it became apparent that critical thinking aims at reaching a logical data description simplifying social economic reality based on these data it is the task of theory to discover logical laws in economic activity if this is realized in a rational manner and this is naturally a theoretical analytical condition economic science according to this structure can be seen in the diagram below a more extensive summary is provided in the synopsis of valuation of economic science at the end of this study 1 appraisal of economic reality 2 a logical consistent description of data as a basis to theory 3 formulation of tendencies in economic process a science pursued with this objective may fall short in two ways in the first instance it is possible that the critical thinking is too far divorced from reality the data from which in this instance conclusions are made are un realistic they are probably too idealistic in this way a basis is laid for the 1 see our study waarderend van het economisch denken more particular chapter iv 2 introduction futile formulation of laws in a presupposed economic process because the conclusions of science are very far from reality

Recent Developments in the Theory of International Trade

international trade theory implicitly assumes that countries participating in external trade each have sovereign status its failure to recognise the pervasive importance of colonial trade as an intermediate stage of external trade development interposed between autarky and international trade narrowly defined creates a serious gap in its explanatory structure and direct applicability anthony john s book is an attempt to examine the properties of colonial resource management on the process of territorial specialisation he considers the implications of such foreign involvement for the trade patterns which may ensue after political independence when formal international trade entry is effected
