a bracing and well argued study of america s college debt crisis necessary reading for anyone concerned about the fate of american higher education kirkus college is far too expensive for many people today and the confusing mix of federal state institutional and private financial aid leaves countless students without the resources they need to pay for it in paying the price education scholar sara goldrick rab reveals the devastating effect of these shortfalls goldrick rab examines a study of 3 000 students who used the support of federal aid and pell grants to enroll in public colleges and universities in wisconsin in 2008 half the students in the study left college without a degree while less than 20 percent finished within five years the cause of their problems time and again was lack of money unable to afford tuition books and living expenses they worked too many hours at outside jobs dropped classes took time off to save money and even went without adequate food or housing in many heartbreaking cases they simply left school not with a degree but with crippling debt goldrick rab combines that data with devastating stories of six individual students whose struggles make clear the human and financial costs of our convoluted financial aid policies in the final section of the book goldrick rab offers a range of possible solutions from technical improvements to the financial aid application process to a bold public sector focused first degree free program honestly one of the most exciting books i ve read because goldrick rab has solutions it s a manual that i d recommend to anyone out there if you re a parent if you re a teacher if you re a student trevor noah the daily show

Slow Burn

how the subtle but significant consequences of a hotter planet have already begun from lower test scores to higher crime rates and how we might tackle them today it s hard not to feel anxious about the problem of climate change especially if we think of it as an impending planetary catastrophe in slow burn r jisung park encourages us to view climate change through a different lens one that focuses less on the possibility of mass climate extinction in a theoretical future and more on the everyday implications of climate change here and now drawing on a wealth of new data and cutting edge economics park shows how climate change headlines often

miss some of the most important costs when wildfires blaze what happens to people downwind of the smoke when natural disasters destroy buildings and bridges what happens to educational outcomes park explains how climate change operates as the silent accumulation of a thousand tiny conflagrations imperceptibly elevated health risks spread across billions of people pennies off the dollar of productivity fewer opportunities for upward mobility by investigating how the physical phenomenon of climate change interacts with social and economic institutions park illustrates how climate change already affects everyone and may act as an amplifier of inequality wealthier households and corporations may adapt quickly but without targeted interventions less advantaged communities may not viewing climate change as a slow and unequal burn comes with an important silver lining it puts dollars and cents behind the case for aggressive emissions cuts and helps identify concrete steps that can be taken to better manage its adverse effects we can begin to overcome our climate anxiety park shows us when we begin to tackle these problems locally

Jasper

2017-05-17

Jasper Earl of Pembroke, Duke of Bedford, brother and uncle of King Edward IV, was a central figure in the Wars of the Roses and the Lancastrian claimant during the reign of Edward IV. The second son of Owen Tudor and the widowed Queen Katherine of Valois, he was the half brother of Henry VI, who gave him a prominent role at court as one of England's major nobles and a potential successor to Henry. He was seen as a threat by Yorkists, and he took part in the major battles of the war, leading the Lancastrian forces at Mortimer's Cross and Tewkesbury. The tempestuous politics in England meant that he had to spend time in exile in Brittany, taking his nephew Henry with him. Under Jasper's influence, Henry prospered and returned to England to defeat Richard III at the Battle of Bosworth, leading to the establishment of the Tudor dynasty. Despite his important place in history, Jasper has become the forgotten kingmaker, neglected by historians. This book is the first full academic study of him, drawing upon contemporary sources from England, Wales, and France, and the wider historiography to present a detailed and superbly researched biography. Illustrations: 30 black and white illustrations.

Cultural Techniques

This volume presents the preliminary results of the work carried out by the interdisciplinary Cultural Techniques Research Lab at the University of Erfurt, taking up an impulse from media studies. Its contributions examine from a variety of disciplinary perspectives the interplay between the formative processes of knowledge and action outlined within the conceptual framework of Cultural Techniques. Case studies in the fields of history, literary and media studies, and the history of science reconstruct seemingly fundamental demarcations such as nature and culture, the human and the nonhuman, and materiality and the symbolical order as the result of concrete practices and operations. These studies reveal that particularly basic operations of spatialization form the very conditions that determine emergence within any cultural order, ranging from manual and philological paper work to practices of opening up and closing off spaces and collective techniques of assembly. These case studies replace the grand narratives of cultural history, focusing on micrological examinations of specific constellations between human and nonhuman actors.

There is increased world-wide concern about the impact of multiple chronic conditions, especially among the rapidly aging population. Simultaneously over the past decade, there has been an emergence of state-wide and national initiatives to reduce the burden of chronic conditions that draw upon the translation of evidence-based programs (EBP) into community practice. Yet little has been written about the national and international implementation, dissemination, and sustainability of such programs. This research topic features articles about EBPs for older adults, including a range of articles that focus on the infrastructure needed to widely disseminate EBP, as well as individual participant impacts on physical, mental, and social aspects of health and well-being. Using a pragmatic research perspective, this research topic will advance knowledge that aims to enhance practice, inform policy, and build systems of support and delivery in regard to the reach, effectiveness, adoption, implementation, and maintenance of evidence-based interventions for older adults. The focus is on knowledge transfer rather than knowledge generation, but with a dual emphasis on the dissemination and sustainability of EBP that have been tested and shown effective, as well as the adaptation of practice-based interventions into evidence-based programs. This research topic draws upon grand-scale efforts to deliver these programs and includes both U.S. as well as international examples. Commentaries discuss processes in the development and measurement of EBP and reflect perspectives from program developers and major national and regional funders of EBP, as well as professionals and practitioners in the field. The full-length articles focus on four major programmatic areas: 1) chronic disease self-management programs, 2) fall prevention programs, 3) general wellness and physical activity programs, and 4) mental health programs. Additionally, articles are included to discuss cross-cutting issues related to building partnerships and the research infrastructure for the implementation, evaluation, and dissemination of evidence-based programming. The intent of this research topic is to enhance practice, inform policy, and build systems of support and delivery for EBP. It is written for a diverse audience and contains practical implications and recommendations for introducing, delivering, and sustaining EBP in a multitude of settings.

This book integrates a science and business approach to provide an introduction and an insider view of intellectual property issues within the biotech industry, with case studies and examples from developing economy markets. Broad in scope, this book covers key principles in pharmaceutical, industrial, and agricultural biotechnology within four parts. Part 1 details the principles of intellectual property and biotechnology. Part 2 covers plant biotechnology, including biotic and abiotic stress tolerance, GM foods in sustainable agriculture, microbial biodiversity, and bioprospecting for improving crop health and productivity, and production and regulatory requirements of biopesticides and biofertilizers. The third part describes recent advances in industrial biotechnology, such as DNA patenting and commercial viability of the CRISPR-Cas9 system in genome editing. The final part describes intellectual property issues in drug discovery and development of personalized medicine and vaccines in biodefense. This book is an ideal resource for all postgraduates and researchers working in any branch of biotechnology that requires an overview of the recent developments of intellectual property frameworks in the biotech sector.
