when sports ministry first emerged in the 1950s and 1960s its founders imagined male celebrity athletes as powerful salespeople who could deliver a message of christian strength if athletes can endorse shaving cream razor blades and cigarettes surely they can endorse the lord too reasoned fellowship of christian athletes founder don mcclanen but combining evangelicalism and sport did much more than serve as an advertisement for religion it gave athletes the opportunity to think about the embodied experiences of sport as a way to experience intimate connection with the divine as sports ministry developed it focused on individual religious experiences and downplayed celebrity sales power opening the door for female christian athletes to join and eventually dominate sports ministry today women are the majority of participants in sports ministry in the united states in playing for god annie blazer offers an exploration of the history and religious lives of christian athletes showing that evangelical engagement with popular culture can carry unintended consequences when sport became an avenue for embodied worship it forced a reckoning with evangelical teachings about the body female christian athletes increasingly turned to their own bodies to understand their religious identity and in so doing came to question evangelical mainstays on gender and sexuality what was once a male dominated masculinist project of sports engagement became a female dominated movement that challenged evangelical ideas on femininity marriage hierarchy and the sinfulness of homosexuality though evangelicalism has not changed sporting culture for those involved in sports ministry sport has changed evangelicalism

Playing for God 2011

this monumental study examines issues of anthropomorphism in the three abrahamic faiths as viewed through the texts of the hebrew bible the new testament and the qur an throughout history christianity and judaism have tried to make sense of god while juxtaposing the islamic position against this the author addresses the judeo christian worldview and how each has chosen to framework its encounter with god to what extent this has been the result of actual scripture and to what extent the product of theological debate or church decrees of later centuries and absorption of hellenistic philosophy shah also examines islam s heavily anti anthropomorphic stance and islamic theological discourse on tawhid as well as the ninety nine names of god and what these have meant in relation to muslim understanding of god and his attributes describing how these became the touchstone of muslim discourse with judaism and christianity he critiques theological statements and perspectives that came to dilute if not counter strict monotheism as secularism debates whether god is dead the issue of anthropomorphism has become of immense importance the quest for god especially in this day and age is partly one of intellectual longing to shah anthropomorphic concepts and corporeal depictions of the divine are perhaps among the leading factors of modern atheism as such he ultimately draws the conclusion that the postmodern longing for god will not be quenched by pre modern anthropomorphic and corporeal concepts of the divine which have simply brought god down to this cosmos with a precise historical function and a specified location reducing the intellectual and spiritual force of what god is and represents causing the soul to detract from a sense of the sacred and thereby belief in him
