Repec provides access to repec the world's largest collection of on-line economics working papers, journal articles, and software. We have 1,203,997 papers. Repec is an initiative that enhances the dissemination of research in economics and related areas. It provides various services for authors, readers, publishers, and editors. The economic journal is one of the founding journals of modern economics, first published in 1891. The journal remains one of the top journals in the profession and specializes in mathematical economic theory. The journal of economics focuses on microeconomic theory while also publishing papers on macroeconomic topics as well. Repec is the largest bibliographic database dedicated to economics and available freely on the internet. Based on Repec, it indexes over 4,700,000 items. The economic journal is a general journal with papers that appeal to a broad and global readership and offer a speedy and fair review process for papers in all fields of economics. NER's infrastructure is sponsored by the School of Economics and Finance of Massey University in New Zealand. NER is an empirical economics journal that publishes high-quality papers that apply advanced econometric or statistical methods to confront economic theory with observed data. Exemplary topics include labor economics, development, microeconomics, health, education, demography, empirical corporate finance, empirical studies of trade, and general methodological applied and empirical contributions to economics. Theoretical contributions to contract theory, decision theory, game theory, general equilibrium, applied economics, and applied economics are also included. Applied economics is a peer-reviewed journal encouraging the application of economic analysis to specific problems in both the public and private sectors. It provides a critical perspective on economics in the twenty-first century. A 2016 article discusses two lessons: why markets work so well and why they can fail so badly. Global supply chains amplify economic costs of future extreme heat risk. A global high-resolution disaster footprint analytical model is developed to show the latest research and news. Nature Economics articles from across Nature Portfolio featured job environment feedbacks. Angelos features a balance of quality
