the preface the writer for many years has employed his spare time in examining those older portions of london which have now been to a great extent improved away he has visited them again and again making notes on the spot with brush and pencil of picturesque buildings threatened with destruction he has also hunted up old documents relating to them and has carefully checked any statements on the subject by previous writers the result of what has been to him a labour of love may perhaps have interest even value for the public this must be his excuse for adding to the already long list of deep as the devil s own appetites working ahead of a major dam project she has one summer to prove nothing of historical value will be lost in the flood from the moment she arrives nothing is familiar the vastness of the canyon was the granddaughter and niece of two of england s lord keepers of the great seal sir nicholas bacon and sir francis bacon lady anne was also the friend and patroness of john donne and joseph hall however she deserves to be remembered in her own right within her massive country house lady anne created a tiny painted room that she seems to have used as a kind of three dimensional book the walls consisted of panels of pictures and mottoes grouped under latin sentences these panels can still be viewed in a suffolk museum christchurch mansion in ipswich some panels point to classical and biblical sources and to popular emblem books the sources of other panels are more recondite while still others are original compositions by lady anne the panels exhibit a contemptus mundi theme and reflect a struggle with ambition pride and even despair some panels also appear to register carefully veiled but pointed critiques of political and religious events and figures lady anne s painted closet or architext is thus relevant to a wide range of early modern scholarship in various disciplines but is as yet largely unappreciated for the first time in four hundred years this book fully describes the closet and places it in its personal social intellectual and aesthetic contexts it argues for the painted closet s importance for understanding early modern conceptualizations of private and public spaces and for illuminating fundamental early modern habits of seeing and reading especially combinations of text and image finally this book explores the closet as an example of the ingenious ways in which female subjectivity found ways to express itself even within the constraints of early modern patriarchal society in england
