children's television in Poland and the figure of the secret agent in contemporary culture as well as many more besides Muriel Blaive and the contributors demonstrate the potential of social history to deconstruct parochial national perceptions of communism. This cutting edge volume is a vital resource for academics, postgraduates and advanced undergraduates studying East Central European history, Stalinism and comparative communism. Welfare reforms in post-communist countries are determined by economic and social hardship, democratization of the political systems and rapid structural change. This groundbreaking book provides a comprehensive and systematic empirical assessment of the central and eastern European post-communist welfare states in the context of their western European counterparts, basing the study on new data on welfare entitlements and cluster analysis. Kati Kuitto systematically compares 26 European welfare states across three empirical dimensions. The author employs a multidimensional framework to analyze patterns of welfare policies and highlight spending priorities, financing and the generosity of welfare entitlements. Kati Kuitto thus sheds light on the hybrid patterns of welfare policies in post-communist countries as they have emerged after the period of transformation and discusses their future challenges. Unique and comprehensive, this is essential reading for researchers in the fields of comparative welfare state research and central and eastern European studies as well as students and practitioners of social policy, social security and political economy. The authors of this book, scholars from Austria, Czech Republic, Hungary, Ukraine, Kirghizia and Poland, seek to answer the question in what way the West European and post-communist countries respond to the challenges posed to them by democratization in central and eastern Europe and European constitutional politics and policymaking. New democracies necessarily pose a challenge to non-democratic states because they liberated themselves from the totalitarian regime; they pose a challenge for the old liberal democracies too because they try to compromise individual interests and freedoms with traditional pre-political and political group identities. But just the model of democracy can be followed in many non-western countries which aspire to establish a democratic order. This book raises the questions that are particularly significant to the present day political practice in its European and global dimensions. It is intended as a companion volume for all those who combine their academic research with wider interests in the promoting of democracy in the period of globalization and under the new pressures of European constitutional politics. Published in 1997, this text presents a specific interest in analyzing the role of the elites as a key factor for democratic rule and policy changes. In order to put the elites in perspective, the author has also conducted opinion surveys asking some of the same questions among representative samples of the populations in the three countries. Comparing these three rather similar states gives possibilities for singling out conditions for specific national developments in elite structure and policies. This book presents the principal findings of a unique and in-depth study into the birth of democracy and the market economy in fifteen post-communist countries. European integration and the communist dilemma assesses the response of communist parties to European integration using three contrasting and comparatively significant case studies from Greece, Cyprus and Italy. These parties, in common with other radical parties in Europe, face a continuing strategic dilemma with regard to Europe through which larger questions about communist ideology and identity can be illuminated. Exploring the tendency of communist parties to face a trade-off between domestic legitimacy and electoral concerns and their nature as parties professing opposition to the systemic currents of capitalism and european integration the author provides a fascinating study of the nuances in deciding whether to adopt ideological consistency or undergo moderation blending advances in party politics communist history and europeanization research the book devises a framework that overcomes the deficiencies of uni dimensional approaches to the study of parties and europe in this manner wider insights on the national party politics of european integration are drawn a detailed look at the deadly battle between us navy f9f panther jet fighter bombers and communist anti aircraft artillery aaa defenses that proliferated throughout the korean war the f9f panther was one of the many fighters converted for ground attack duties following an established us tradition originally designed as a jet fighter in april 1951 it became the first jet to launch from a carrier with bombs loaded using them to destroy a crucial railway bridge at songjin the panther s four 20 mm guns were considered to be very effective for flak suppression and these aircraft were used as escorts for propeller driven ad skyraider and f4u corsair attack aircraft however later in 1951 flak damage to panthers increased as the chinese established better aaa weapons to defend key transport routes the communist aaa crews had heavy guns of 37 mm caliber and above gunners could use optical height finders predictors and in many cases radar control they learned to conceal their weapons in civilian buildings use wires to bring aircraft down and set up false targets as flak traps both opponents tactics and gunnery are explored in depth in this study of the f9f panthers and of their adversaries containing full color illustrations including cockpit scenes and armament views this innovative volume also includes a detailed analysis of the us navy panthers loss rates and their causes a muslim reformist in communist yugoslavia examines the islamic modernist thought of husein Đozo a prominent balkan scholar born at a time when the external challenges to the muslim world were many and its internal problems both complex and overwhelming Đozo made it his goal to reinterpret the teachings of the qur an and hadīth prophetic tradition to a generation for whom the truths and realities of islam had fallen into disuse as a muslim scholar who lived and worked in a european communist multi cultural and multi religious society husein Đozo and his work present us with a particularly exciting account through which to examine the innovative interpretations of islam for example through a critical analysis of Đozo s most significant fatwās and other relevant materials this book examines the extent of the inherent flexibility of the islamic law and its ability to respond to muslim interests in different socio political conditions since Đozo s writings in general and his fatwās in particular have continued to be published in the balkan lands up to the present this monograph should help shed some light on certain assumptions underlying modern islamic thought and consciousness found in the region taking a new look at two controversial topics american anti communism and the cold war this book reveals the little known history of anti communism in the us from the point of view of ethnic refugee émigré groups and also offers insight into the lives of minority groups that have hitherto not received scholarly attention this book examines how and why policies are reversed by focusing on post communist backtracking on pension privatization this book examines the way democracy is thought about and lived by people in the post communist world the immediate purpose of this handbook is to aid further research by stating in a form providing handy reference the facts concerning the communist ideology in hungary following a narrative of the vicissitudes of that ideology prior to its power phase intended as a general introduction contributing to
