the 300th anniversary of the landing of jan van riebeek and the founding of cape town south africa taking place at the height of the apartheid era the festival was viewed by many as an opportunity for the government to promote its nationalist separatist agenda in grand fashion leslie witz's fine grained examination of newspapers brochures pamphlets and advertising materials reveals the expectations of the festival planners as well as how the festival was engineered historical figures were reconstructed and the anc and other anti apartheid organizations mounted opposition to it while laying open the darker motives of the apartheid regime witz shows that the production of local history is part of a global process forged by the struggle between colonialism and resistance readers interested in south africa representations of nationalism and the making of public history will find apartheid's festival to be an important study of a society in transition capitalizing on the current movement in history education to nurture a set of shared methodologies and perspectives this text looks to break down some of the obstacles to transnational understanding in history focusing on pedagogy to embed democratic principles of inclusion inquiry multiple interpretations and freedom of expression four themes which are influencing the broadening of history education to a globalized community of practice run throughout teaching history and the changing nation state pedagogy democracy and dialogue the nation politics and transnational dimensions landmarks with questions shared histories shared commemorations and re evaluating past denials the contributors use the same pedagogical language in a global debate about history teaching and learning to break down barriers to search for shared histories and mutual understanding they
