this book focuses on the balance between protecting human rights and protecting world heritage sites it concerns itself with the idea that the management of heritage properties worldwide may fail to adequately respect traditional entitlements and rights of individuals and communities living within or being affected by changes in the use of these spaces it also explores the concept that the international heritage field has limited knowledge and awareness of this challenge the volume argues that the dilemmas in question result from different conceptualisations of the key terms of rights heritage and community among different groups and across political and cultural boundaries in so far as culture is what enables us to read the meanings involved the ultimate questions are those that ask whose power is contested when one meaning is fixed and the heritage of one group of humans is given the right to have its symbolic representation enjoyed and protected the included case studies give vivid examples of this this book was originally published as a special issue of the international journal of heritage studies in the wake of the second world war internationalists identified science as both the cause of and the solution to world crisis unless civilization learned to control the unprecedented powers science had unleashed global catastrophe was imminent but the internationalists found hope in the idea of world government in the postwar origins of the global environment perrin selcer argues that the metaphor of spaceship earth the idea of the planet as a single interconnected system exemplifies this moment when a mix of anxiety and hope inspired visions of world community and the proliferation of international institutions selcer tells the story of how the united nations built the international knowledge infrastructure that made the global scale environment visible experts affiliated with un agencies helped make the global as in global population global climate and global economy an object in need of governance selcer traces how un programs such as unesco s arid lands project the production of a soil map of the world and plans for a global environmental monitoring system fell short of utopian ambitions to cultivate world citizens but did produce an international community of experts with influential connections to national governments he shows how events and personalities cultures and ecologies bureaucracies and ideologies decolonization and the cold war interacted to make global knowledge a major contribution to global history environmental history and the history of development this book relocates the origins of planetary environmentalism in the postwar politics of scale the international order is constituted by a plurality of international regimes institutionalized arrangements in different issue areas that possess their own norms and procedures the present book examines how conflict among regimes may arise and probes the role that international law can play in managing such conflict throughout the book the example of trade in cultural products is used to illustrate the evolution of regime conflict and the potential for its management conflicts between the goals of free trade and cultural diversity have notably surfaced within the world trade organization wto and the united nations educational scientific and cultural organization unesco as a result there is a potential for conflict among wto law the unesco s convention on the protection and promotion of the diversity of cultural expressions and human rights the book posits that three dimensions are characteristic for regime conflict first regime conflict is a function of conflict among different social goals or values second such goal conflicts are institutionalized through the interaction of a variety of political actors struggling for influence often in intergovernmental organizations third regime conflict may manifest itself in conflicts of legal rules if a state acts in conformity with the rules of one regime its conduct may trigger a violation of the rules of another regime the author argues that while international law cannot be construed as a fully integrated and unified system it does provide a common language for different regimes to engage with each other the shared discourse rules of international law enable a degree of coordination of the policies of different regimes notably through techniques of interpretation and legal priority rules international law contributes to the management of regime conflict by providing commonly accepted reasons for choosing among competing policy goals
