History of the Office of the Secretary of Defense: The formative years, 1947-1950 1984

the fascinating history of white solidarity with the black power movement in the mid 1960s as the politics of black self determination gained steam black activists had a new message for white activists go into your own communities and organize white people against racism while much of the media at the time and many historians since have regarded this directive as a white purge from the black freedom movement say burgin argues that it heralded a new strategy racially parallel organizing which people experimented with all over the country organizing your own shows that the black freedom movement never experienced a white purge and it offers a new way of understanding black power's relationship to white america by focusing on detroit from the mid 1960s through the mid 1970s this volume illuminates a wide cross section of white activists who took direction from black led groups like the northern student movement the city wide citizens action committee and the league of revolutionary black workers organizing your own draws on numerous oral histories and heretofore unseen archives to show that these white activists mobilized support for black self determination in education policing employment and labor unions it was a trial and error effort that pushed white activists to grapple with tough questions which white people should they organize and how which black led groups should they take direction from and when did taking black direction become mere sycophancy the story of detroit's white fight for black power thus not only reveals a broader richer movement but it carries great insight into questions that remain relevant

Melvin Laird and the Foundation of the Post-Vietnam Military, 1969-1973 2015

today the united states has one of the highest poverty rates among the world's rich industrial democracies the failed welfare revolution shows us that things might have turned out differently during the 1960s and 1970s policymakers in three presidential administrations tried to replace the nation's existing welfare system with a revolutionary program to guarantee americans basic economic security surprisingly from today's vantage point guaranteed income plans received broad bipartisan support in the 1960s one proposal president nixon's family assistance plan nearly passed into law in the 1970s and president carter advanced a similar bill a few years later the failure of these proposals marked the federal government's last direct effort to alleviate poverty among the least advantaged and ironically sowed the seeds of conservative welfare reform strategies under president reagan and beyond this episode has largely vanished from america's collective memory here brian steensland tells the whole story for the first time from why such an unlikely policy idea first developed to the factors that sealed its fate his account based on extensive original research in presidential archives draws on mainstream social science perspectives that emphasize the influence of powerful stakeholder groups and policymaking institutions but steensland also shows that some of the most potent obstacles to guaranteed income plans were cultural most centrally by challenging americans longstanding distinction between the deserving and undeserving poor the plans threatened the nation's cultural political and economic status quo
