scientists historians philosophers and theologians often engage in debates on the limitations and mutual interactions of their respective fields of study serious discussions are often overshadowed by the mass produced popular and semi popular literature on science and religion as well as by the political agendas of many of the actors in these debates for some reducing religion and science to forms of social discourse is a possible way out from epistemological overlapping between them yet is there room for religious faith only when science dissolves into one form of social discourse the religion thus rescued would have neither rational legitimisation nor metaphysical validity but if both scientific and religious theories try to make absolute claims on all possible aspects of reality then conflict between them seems almost inevitable in this book leading authors in the field of science and religion including william carroll steve fuller karl giberson and roger trigg highlight the oft neglected and profound philosophical foundations that underlie some of the most frequent questions at the boundary between science and religion the reality of knowledge and the notions of creation life and design in tune with mariano artigas s work the authors emphasise that these are neither religious nor scientific but serious philosophical questions the turn of the twenty first century has seen an ever increasing profile for religion contrary to long standing predictions of its decline instead the west has experienced what some call a realignment of religion where it persists in conjunction with other institutions and structures outside the west religion is an ever more prominent force in social and political movements of both reform and retrenchment across these contexts no issue in religion is of as much concern as fundamentalism or rather the fundamentalisms within various traditions which are seen to be fomenting religious social ethnic and political tension and conflict the contributions to this volume represent the first effort to look at fundamentalisms and the media together and address the resulting relations and interactions from critical perspectives of history technology geography and practice the result lays important groundwork for scholarship on these new and increasingly important phenomena a profound cultural shift is taking place in western societies religion is in decline and secular worldviews are on the rise at the same time religion is taking more overtly political shapes and still affects our world in important sometimes dangerous ways this book examines two rival explanations for these trends critiquing the popular notion that god has been killed by modern science and offering a fresh take that draws on research in the social sciences to argue that greater socio economic equality and moral values that favor tolerance are at the heart of our collective drift away from organized faith in god after darwin eminent theologian john f haught argues that the ongoing debate between darwinian evolutionists and christian apologists is fundamentally misdirected both sides persist in focusing on an. explanation of underlying design and order in the universe haught suggests that what is lacking in both of these competing ideologies is the notion of novelty a necessary component of evolution and the essence of the unfolding of the divine mystery he argues that darwin s disturbing picture of life instead of being hostile to religion as scientific skeptics and many believers have thought it to be actually provides a most fertile setting for mature reflection on the idea of god solidly grounded in scholarship haught s explanation of the relationship between theology and evolution is both accessible and engaging the second edition of god after darwin features an entirely new chapter on the ongoing controversial debate between intelligent design and evolution including an assessment of haught s experience as an expert witness in the landmark case of kitzmiller v dover area school district on teaching evolution and intelligent design in schools mark j p wolf s study of imaginary worlds theorizes world building within and across media including literature comics film radio television board games video games the internet and more building imaginary worlds departs from prior approaches to imaginary worlds that focused mainly on narrative medium or genre and instead considers imaginary worlds as dynamic entities in and of themselves wolf argues that imaginary worlds which are often transnarrative transmedial and transauthorial in nature are compelling objects of inquiry for media studies chapters touch on a theoretical analysis of how world building extends beyond storytelling the engagement of the audience and the way worlds are conceptualized and experienced a history of imaginary worlds that follows their development over three millennia from the fictional islands of homer s odyssey to the present internarrative theory examining how narratives set in the same world can interact and relate to one another an examination of transmedial growth and adaptation and what happens when worlds make the jump between media an analysis of the transauthorial nature of imaginary worlds the resulting concentric circles of authorship and related topics of canonicity participatory worlds and subcreation s relationship with divine creation building imaginary worlds also provides the scholar of imaginary worlds with a glossary of terms and a detailed timeline that spans three millennia and more than 1 400 imaginary worlds listing their names creators and the works in which they first appeared ghosts and other supernatural phenomena are widely represented throughout modern culture they can be found in any number of entertainment commercial and other contexts but popular media or commodified representations of ghosts can be quite different from the beliefs people hold about them based on tradition or direct experience personal belief and cultural tradition on the one hand and popular and commercial representation on the other nevertheless continually feed each other they frequently share space in how people think about the supernatural in haunting experiences three well known folklorists seek to broaden the discussion of ghost lore by examining it from a variety of angles in various modern contexts diane e goldstein sylvia ann grider and jeannie banks thomas take ghosts seriously as they draw on contemporary scholarship that emphasizes both the basis of belief in experience rather than mere fantasy and the usefulness of ghost stories they look closely at the narrative role of such lore in matters such as socialization and gender and they unravel the complex mix of mass media commodification and popular culture that today puts old spirits into new contexts some of the brightest scientific minds of our time from albert einstein to stephen hawking have made incredible insights into the earliest origins of the universe but have failed to ultimately discover why there is something rather than nothing why we exist in a case for the existence of god dean l overman examines the latest theories about the origins of the universe and explains why even the most sophisticated science can only take us so far ultimately we must make a leap of faith to understand the world and overman argues that a leap into theism provides the most satisfying conclusions overman explores fundamental questions about why our world exists and how it functions using principles of logic physics and theology in a time when religion and science are often portrayed as diametrically opposed a case for the existence of god presents a refreshing view of the interplay between science and religion and makes a compelling case for the existence of god and his role in our world the current religion and science dialogue begs for greater clarity on the relation of god to nature in god and nature two scholars who embrace contemporary insights from science and religion explore the complexities of this debate as the narrative unfolds classical and contemporary thinkers are engaged as discussion partners in articulating a philosophical theology of nature conceptual pairs in which two concepts play off of each other provide the structure for each of the seven chapters with usually the first concept being more scientific in character and the second more religious in tone these pairs of concepts from chronology and creation to creativity and creator help to thematize and structure the progressing narrative within each chapter the two concepts are first investigated independently then interdependently and finally in relation to the divine at the story s completion nature has emerged as alive with possibility that is as alluring as the actuality it evokes envisioned is a divine creator who works in and through the possibility of creation to lure it into fuller manifestations via creative transformation consider the woven integrated complexity of a living cell after 3.8 billion years of evolution is it more awe inspiring to suppose that a transcendent god fashioned the cell or to consider that the living organism was created by the evolving biosphere as the eminent complexity theorist stuart kauffman explains in this ambitious and groundbreaking new book people who do not believe in god have largely lost their sense of the sacred and the deep human legitimacy of our inherited spirituality for those who believe in a creator god no science will ever disprove that belief in reinventing the sacred kauffman argues that the science of complexity provides a way to move beyond reductionist science to something new a unified culture where we see god in the creativity of the universe biosphere and humanity kauffman explains that the ceaseless natural creativity of the world can be a profound source of meaning wonder and further grounding of our place in the universe his theory carries with it a new ethic for an emerging civilization and a reinterpretation of the divine he asserts that we are impelled by the imperative of life itself to live with faith and courage and the fact that we do so is indeed sublime reinventing the sacred will change the way we all think about the evolution of humanity the universe faith and reason
