all white people understand cultural differences from a platform of relative privilege affecting their personal and professional interactions how should they respond when confronted with this knowledge this introductory book looks at the concept of whiteness and shows how individuals can unmask their own whiteness and take meaningful steps to break down unconscious bias and structural racism exploring how colonial history resulted in white privilege this book examines how that privilege manifests today in a culturally diverse world and the links between the rise in far right politics and anti immigration rhetoric that led to brexit and donald trump s election it looks at the pressures on privilege and white populations with candid reflections on how even well meaning white people may project unconscious bias in their everyday lives there are also dedicated chapters on training to raise awareness of white privilege in professional organizations

this book invites us to abandon our gender identity and look deeper into who we truly are cultural ideals that see women and men as fundamentally different manifest into a physical reality of sex differentiated behaviour be it in cognitive abilities psychological traits or even dispositions we know from epigenetic studies that there is no separation between mind and environment our perceptions of environmental signals filtered through cultural beliefs translate into a corresponding behaviour in order to maintain harmony between mind body and environment social cultures the world over still see women as suited for care and service and men as suited for work outside the home as women make life career choices they are constrained by cultural ideas images and symbols that create the nurturance imperative in their psyche women mistake this learnt nurturing behaviour of putting others interests before theirs for natural instinct and make choices that are not in line with their authentic self women in other words unknowingly make false choices this is only half the story of sexism in our societies the other and more toxic half is that in order to fulfill the gender agenda of women are care givers and men are providers girls are brought up to be feminine only and boys are brought up to be masculine only inevitably any aspects of the self that are thought to belong to the opposite sex are repressed which gives us a sense of lack and feelings of inadequacy and results in a disconnection from the heart and alienation from the true self the book also shows how our sexist thoughts manifest in a sex biased reality in the workplace neuroplasticity and epigenetic laws are used to suggest ways of radically changing the work environment to one that is equally supportive of womens and mens success the new work environment and work practices can profoundly change how businesses operate in the world allowing them to become more adept at generating profit in todays overly competitive globalized markets this book develops an innovative system in the form of an app that harnesses the power of the internet to predict which sorts of people will prefer which policy in any planning situation it chronicles the accumulated research wisdom behind the system's reasoning along with several less successful approaches to policy making that have been found wanting in the past including the myth usually peddled by strategic planners that it is possible to find a best plan which optimally satisfies everybody the book lays out an entirely new kind of planning support system pss it will facilitate decision making that is far more community sensitive than previously and it will drastically improve the performance of anyone who needs to plan within socially sensitive contexts which is all of us a standout feature of the system is its commitment to scientific rigour as shown by its predicted plan scores always being graphically presented within error margins so that true statistical significance is instantly observable moreover the probabilities that its predictions are correct are always shown a refreshing change from most if not all other decision support systems dss that simply expect users to accept their outputs on faith alone rather than any technical or knowledge based queries which preoccupy many new doctors this elusive hidden curriculum is pervasive within departments around hospitals and across health systems but is rarely if ever explicitly examined and discussed at its core is the issue that should matter above all others how we can keep our patients as safe as possible the bleep test combines gripping and startlingly vulnerable recollections of early experiences on the wards with an array of research findings from psychology and human biology to anthropology business and behavioural economics acknowledging that the truly complex challenges facing new doctors lie far beyond the realms of the traditional medical sciences in which they were trained the book explains that the shift to being a doctor depends on first understanding how we think reason and behave as someone we have been all our lives a human amongst humans focused on the experiences of and the issues facing recently qualified medics the bleep test is not only for young doctors but also for anyone who manages them works with them cares for them or may one day depend on them in it should never happen again dr mike lauder questions the value of public inquiries every day we hear about another inquiry being set up or why the last one failed to deliver the hoped for outcomes a great deal of time and taxpayers money is spent on inquiries and even more on implementing their recommendations but the author suggests that those conducting inquiries might be considered by their own test criminally negligent in the way they do so and that it is no surprise that they do not lead to the learning they should the focus of mike lauder s research is the gaps between what is known what knowledge is used by practitioners and those who judge them he contends that the difference between the judicial perspective and that of practitioners who are judged by the inquiry process creates barriers that impede others from learning crucially inquiry outcomes do not assist the leadership of organisations to improve risk governance it should never happen again is based on research into high profile public inquiries and presidential commissions in the uk the usa continental europe and elsewhere embracing issues ranging from terrorist attacks to pollution fire and air disasters criminal cases banking and bribery scandals and the state of public services mike lauder contrasts the judicial perspective of those who inquire the academic perspective of those who know and the practical perspective of those who are required to act and offers new models for understanding risk and its governance
