Modeling the Lattice Parameters of Solid Solution Alloys 2017

in this book models for the prediction of lattice parameters of substitutional and interstitial solid solutions as a function of concentration and temperature are presented for substitutional solid solutions the method is based on the hypothesis that the measured lattice parameter versus concentration is the average of the interatomic spacing within a selected region of a bravais lattice the model is applied on ni cu and ge si solid solutions for the interstitial solid solution of the fe c system the method is based on the assumption that the change in lattice parameter of the pure fe phase is due to the occupation by carbon atoms to the octahedral holes in the fcc austenite and bcc martensite the model of lattice parameter versus temperature for both substitutional and interstitial solid solutions is based on the relative change in length and vacancy concentration at lattice sites that are in thermal equilibrium combinations of both models then facilitate the calculation of lattice parameters as a function of concentration and temperature the results are discussed accordingly

Solution Chemistry of Surfactants 2012-12-06

the 52nd colloid and surface science symposium of the division of colloid and surface chemistry of the American Chemical Society was held in Knoxville TN June 12-14 1978 and one of its sections was devoted to the topic of solution chemistry of surfactants although it was billed as the section on solution chemistry of surfactants but it was indeed a veritable international symposium on this topic as 51 papers by about 100 contributors from 12 countries were listed in the program the present volume and its companion volume 2 document the proceedings of the above mentioned section on solution chemistry of surfactants in 1976 there was held an international symposium on micellization solubilization and microemulsions in Albany NY the proceedings of which have been chronicled in two volumes a great deal of material dealing with micelles contributed by a legion of prominent researchers constitutes these volumes but a few subtopics were not adequately covered so it was deemed appropriate to cover these topics as well as the recent progress in the general area of aggregation of surfactants in this section also as it is the amphiphilicity or amphipathicity of a surfactant molecule which is responsible for both adsorption at interfaces and aggregation in solution so it was considered quite apropos to include the topic of adsorption at interfaces in this section concomitantly the present volumes not only cover the aggregation phenomena but also the adsorption at interfaces

Iterative Methods for the Solution of Equations 1982 from the preface 1964 this book presents a general theory of iteration algorithms for the numerical solution of equations and systems of equations the relationship between the quantity and the quality of information used by an algorithm and the efficiency of the algorithm is investigated iteration functions are divided into four classes depending on whether they use new information at one or at several points and whether or not they reuse old information known iteration functions are systematized and new classes of computationally effective iteration functions are introduced our interest in the efficient use of information is influenced by the widespread use of computing machines the mathematical foundations of our subject are treated with rigor but rigor in itself is not the main object some of the material is of wider application most of the material is new and unpublished every attempt has been made to keep the subject in proper historical perspective
