how films of the 1960s and early 1970s framed therapeutic issues as problems of human communication and individual psychological problems as social ones rx hollywood investigates how therapy surfaced in the themes representations and narrative strategies of a changing film industry in the 1960s and early 1970s american cinema was struggling to address adult audiences who were increasingly demanding films that confronted contemporary issues focusing upon five fields of therapeutic inquiry therapist patient dynamics female frigidity and male impotence marital discord hallucinogenic drug use and the dynamics of confession michael deangelis argues that the films of this period reveal an emergent common tendency of therapy to work toward the formation of a stronger sense of interpersonal community social and political engagement counteracting alienation and social division in the spirit of connection and community prior to the 1960s therapy had been considered an introspective process one that emphasized contemplation and insight and prompted the patient to investigate memories and past traumas in the 1960s however therapy would move toward more humanistic client centered community group and encounter models that deemphasized the there and then of past feelings and experiences and embraced the here and now of the present these kinds of therapy promised to heal the self through a process of reaching out helping individuals to connect with communities support networks and other like minded individuals who shared a needed sense of belonging drawing on a wide range of films including marnie the boston strangler the chapman report carnal knowledge divorce american style diary of a mad housewife guess who s coming to dinner and five easy pieces deangelis shows how american culture framed therapeutic issues as problems of human communication developing treatment strategies that addressed individual psychological problems as social problems michael deangelis is associate professor of media and cinema studies at depaul university he is the editor of reading the bromance homosocial relationships in film and television and the author of gay fandom and crossover stardom james dean mel gibson and keanu reeves

the twenty six articles in this edited volume provide perspective on the interrelated issues surrounding the use of drugs in society although drugs have long been a social problem the importance of the issue and the involvement of the criminal justice system have varied across time public concern has typically centered on illegal drugs but the drug issue today is even more complex given the impact of prescription drugs exaggeration has been a constant theme in the history of public policy on drugs usually playing on public fear to demonize specific drugs and users some drugs are more dangerous than others the variations in effects impact enforcement prevention and treatment if we are going to criminalize drugs and drug usage policies and penalties should be based on the relative dangerousness of a drug or class of drugs policies can reduce harm create harm or both our current drug policies attempt to reduce harm through law enforcement we arrest anyone involved in drug activities under the premise of protecting society these same policies however result in the incarceration of large numbers of people they are expensive they overburden the criminal justice system and they have lasting consequences for those caught up in the drug war no matter how minor their offenses drug policies should be weighed carefully implementing those that result in the least amount of harm to society the editors have collected timely articles that provide perspective and a foundation for an informed approach to addressing problems associated with drug use
