educational practice today often fails to make the crucial distinction between learning as an accumulation of information and learning as a dialogical interaction that elicits one's personal response to the material learning through dialogue offers an alternative approach to teaching and learning which utilizes martin buber's dialogical principles turning toward addressing affirmatively listening attentively and responding responsibly the book first presents buber's educational theory and method and second presents specific examples of how buber's dialogical philosophy can be applied in the classroom rather than imposing one's own views this approach enables teachers and students to develop course content in uniquely appropriate ways if you are a teacher a student an educator at any level or anyone interested in furthering his or her ability to engage more meaningfully with the educational process this book will challenge you with fresh perspectives

this edited collection challenges the urban centric nature of much feminist work on gender and education the context for the book is the radical reconfiguration of rural areas that has occurred in recent decades as a result of globalisation from a range of diverse national contexts including kenya and south africa australia and canada and the united states and pakistan authors explore the intersections between masculinity femininity and rurality in education in recognition of the heterogeneity of categories such as rural girl and rural boy they attend to how educational exclusions can be magnified by differences in relation to social locations such as class race or sexuality similar critical insights are brought to bear as authors examine what it means to be a male or female teacher in rural environments contributors draw on data ranging from contemporary feature films to historical materials along with detailed ethnographic work and participatory approaches to produce a compelling narrative of the need to understand education as experienced by those who are not part of the urban majority this book was originally published as a special issue of gender and education
