itself and argues that music and the impulse to write about it is part of the eminently mysterious desire for meaning making that makes us human touching on the close resonances between music language love and belief dancing about architecture is a reasonable thing to do is relevant to anyone who finds deep human and spiritual meaning in music writing and the mysterious connections between them inventing the novel uses the work of the russian philosopher mikhaïl bakhtin 1895 1975 to explore the ancient origins of the modern novel the analysis focuses on one of the most elusive works of classical antiquity the satyricon written by nero s courtier petronius arbiter whose singular suicide described by tacitus is as famous as his novel petronius was the most lauded ancient novelist of the twentieth century and the satyricon served as the original model for f scott fitzgerald s the great gatsby 1925 as well as providing the epigraph for t s eliot s the waste land 1922 and the basis for fellini satyricon 1969 bakhtin s work on the novel was deeply informed by his philosophical views if as a phenomenologist he is a philosopher of consciousness as a student of the novel he is a philosopher of the history of consciousness and it is the role of the novel in this history that held his attention this volume seeks to lay out an argument in four parts that supports bakhtin s sweeping assertion that the satyricon plays an immense role in the history of the novel beginning in chapter 1 with his equally striking claim that the novel originates as a new way of representing time and proceeding to the question of polyphony in petronius and the ancient novel writing about music far from being the specialized domain of the rock critic with encyclopedic knowledge of micro genres or the fancy pants star journalist flying on private planes with led zeppelin has become something almost any music lover can do and does it s been said however that writing about music is a difficult even pointless enterprise an absurd impossibility like dancing about architecture but aside from the fact that dancing about architecture would be awesome what is that ineffable something that drives people to write about music at all in this short insightful book joel heng hartse unpacks the rock writer richard meltzer s assertion that writing about music should be a parallel artistic effort with music itself and argues that music and the impulse to write about it is part of the eminently mysterious desire for meaning making that makes us human touching on the close resonances between music language love and belief dancing about architecture is a reasonable thing to do is relevant to anyone who finds deep human and spiritual meaning in music writing and the mysterious connections between them inventing the novel uses the work of the russian philosopher mikhail bakhtin 1895 1975 to explore the ancient origins of the modern novel the analysis focuses on one of the most elusive works of classical antiquity the satyricon written by nero s courtier petronius arbiter whose singular suicide described by tacitus is as famous as his novel petronius was the most lauded ancient novelist of the twentieth century and the satyricon served as the original model for f scott fitzgerald s the great gatsby 1925 as well as providing the epigraph for t s eliot s the waste land 1922 and the basis for fellini satyricon 1969 bakhtin s work on the novel was deeply informed by his philosophical views if as a phenomenologist he is a philosopher of consciousness as a student of the novel he is a philosopher of the history of consciousness and it is the role of the novel in this history that held his attention this volume seeks to lay out an argument in four parts that supports bakhtin s sweeping assertion that the satyrical plays an immense role in the history of the novel beginning in chapter 1 with his equally striking claim that the novel originates as a new way of representing time and proceeding to the question of polyphony in petronius and the ancient novel
