based on international human rights theory and case studies and data analyses this examination has several purposes the first is to suggest that china ratify the iccpr as the next step for its substantive progress in human rights and as a good preparation for its re applying to be a member of the un human right council in the future the second is to explain how judges could be better educated in international human rights norms so as to greatly reduce the use of severe punishments and better comply with china s human rights obligations the third is to demonstrate how the international community could better engage with china in a manner that is more conducive to human rights improvements the author s ultimate goal is to enhance dialogue on human rights in china between judges and the chinese government between chinese judges and their foreign counterparts and between china s government and the international community another significant aim of this book is to clarify the controversial question of what obligations china should undertake before its ratification of the iccpr and to re examine trends in its developing human rights policy after standing down from the council in late 2012 the tortuous progress of china s criminal law and criminal justice reforms has confirmed that chinese judges need further instruction on how to apply severe punishments in a manner consistent with international standards judges should be encouraged to exercise more discretion when sentencing so that penalties reflect the intent of relevant domestic laws as well as the international human rights standards enumerated in the iccpr in order to better educate and train judges this book contains introductory chapters that examine the severe punishments currently available to chinese judges from an international human rights perspective to illustrate how chinese justice currently falls short of international norms this paper also examines several cases that are considered to be indicative of china s progress towards greater respect for human rights and the rule of law these cases demonstrate that china still has a long way to go to achieve its goals at least before abolishing the death penalty forced labor and torture the second edition of the successful and definitive nursing textbook nursing practice is designed to support the student throughout the entire nursing degree structured around the latest nursing and midwifery council code of conduct it explores a range of clinical and professional issues that the student will need to know in one complete and accessible volume thoroughly updated and with full colour high quality illustrations throughout this new edition features an additional chapter on the principles of supporting families and carers in practice advice on revalidation as well as a number of learning features and activities to help consolidate learning nursing practice provides invaluable information to enable not just student nurses but also those who are qualified and members of the extended nursing family to develop a deeper challenging assumptions about caregiving for those dying of chronic illness what is it like to live with and love someone whose death while delayed is nevertheless foretold in living in death's shadow emily k abel an expert on the history of death and dying examines memoirs written between 1965 and 2014 by family members of people who died from chronic disease in earlier eras death generally occurred quickly from acute illnesses but as chronic disease became the major cause of mortality many people continued to live with terminal diagnoses for months and even years illuminating the excruciatingly painful experience of coping with a family member's extended fatal illness abel analyzes the political personal cultural and medical dimensions of these struggles the book focuses on three significant developments that transformed the experiences of those dying and their intimates the passage of medicare and medicaid the growing use of high tech treatments at the end of life and the rise of a movement to humanize the care of dying people it questions the exalted value placed on acceptance of mortality as well as the notion that it is always better to die at home than in an institution ultimately living in death's shadow emphasizes the need to shift attention from the drama of death to the entire course of a serious chronic disease the chapters follow a common narrative of life threatening disease learning the diagnosis deciding whether to enroll in a clinical trial acknowledging or struggling against the limits of medicine receiving care at home and in a hospital or nursing home and obtaining palliative and hospice care living in death's shadow is essential reading for everyone seeking to understand what it means to live with someone suffering from a chronic fatal condition including cancer aids alzheimer's and heart disease soldier repatriation from afghanistan has impacted debate about the war this study highlights this impact with particular focus on britain denmark and germany all three countries deployed soldiers soon after the 9 11 attacks yet their role in afghanistan and the casualty rates suffered have been vastly different this book looks at how their casualties influenced the framing of the war by analysing the political discourse about the casualties how the media covered the repatriation and the burials and how the dead were officially recognised and commemorated explaining how bodies count is not done exclusively by focusing on the political leadership and the media in the three countries the response from the men and women in afghanistan to the official framing of the war is given particular weight martinsen contributes to our understanding of european strategic culture by showing how countries respond to the same security challenges succession wills and probate is an ideal textbook for those taking an undergraduate course in this surprisingly vibrant subject and also provides a clear and comprehensive introduction for professionals against an account of the main social and political themes of succession law the book gives detailed explanations of core topics such as alternatives to wills and the making altering and revocation of wills it also explains personal representatives and how they should deal with a deceased person s estate and interpret and implement the will gifts may fail estates may be insolvent or a person may die intestate without a will at all increasingly relatives and others seek to challenge the will for example on the grounds of the testator s capacity or under the law of family provision this third edition is edited updated and revised to take account of new legislation and case law across all the relevant issues including a new final chapter dealing with the potentially contentious issues that are becoming more central to professional work in the field of succession

this book is designed to introduce law students legal actors and human rights activists particularly participants in human rights dialogues with china to the process and reality of a newly confident china s participation in the international human rights system albeit with inherent challenges from an international and comparative perspective one of the key findings of the author s research is that progress towards human rights depends more on judges than on legislators chinese legislators have enacted a series of reforms in order to better protect human rights unfortunately these reforms have not led to greater adherence to china s international human rights obligations in practice the reforms failed because they have generally been misunderstood by chinese judges who often have a limited understanding of international human rights norms specifically this book will examine how judicial misunderstandings have blocked reforms in one specific area the use of severe punishments based on international human rights theory and case studies and data analyses this examination has several purposes the first is to suggest that china ratify the iccpr as the next step for its substantive progress in human rights and as a good preparation for its re applying to be a member of the un human right council in the future the second is to explain how judges could be better educated in international human rights norms so as to greatly reduce the use of severe punishments and better comply with china s human rights obligations the third is to demonstrate how the international community could better engage with china in a manner that is more conducive to human rights improvements the author s ultimate goal is to enhance dialogue on human rights in china between judges and the chinese government between chinese judges and their foreign counterparts and between china s government and the international community another significant aim of this book is to clarify the controversial question of what obligations china should undertake before its ratification of the iccpr and to re examine trends in its developing human rights policy after standing down from the council in late 2012 the tortuous progress of china s criminal law and criminal justice reforms has confirmed that chinese judges need further instruction on how to apply severe punishments in a manner consistent with international standards judges should be encouraged to exercise more discretion when sentencing so that penalties reflect the intent of relevant domestic laws as well as the international human rights standards enumerated in the iccpr in order to better educate and train judges this book contains introductory chapters that examine the severe punishments currently available to chinese judges from an international human rights perspective to illustrate how chinese justice currently falls short of international norms this paper also examines several cases that are considered to be indicative of china s progress towards greater respect for human rights and the rule of law these cases demonstrate that china still has a long way to go to achieve its goals at least before abolishing the death penalty forced labor and torture
