res 86 for much of the past century we have viewed the issue of parking from the driver s seat it follows that key narratives about parking reaffirm the immediate needs of the driver a consequence of this approach is a failure to understand the significant damage that parking causes to the destination that damage is amplified by cheap easy parking at the expense of place and access outcomes viewing parking from an urban planning and design perspective highlights different issues and opportunities five perspectives are offered place if we gave drivers all the parking they wanted the destination would not be worth visiting politics parking is intensely territorial emotional and prone to populism and this is a barrier to strategic and sustainable parking reform policy parking tends to be focused on the me here and now needs of the driver at the expense of bigger picture and longer term policy objectives price subsidized parking exists behind opaque pricing mechanisms in contrast a transparent accounting of costs is a vehicle for strategic parking reform professional practice parking is a significant land use issue located at the juncture of transport and urban planning and design improving urban parking outcomes requires an integrated and collaborative planning process an alternative view of parking is timely as new technologies and economies fundamentally change everything we understand about parking a potential paradigm shift is in the making rethinking parking provides a pathway to a better parking place balance and access to destinations worth visiting it is valuable reading for students and professionals engaged in transport planning urban access and design the subcommittee is concerned over the fact that the communists have gained a foothold in the
