plot writes peter brooks is so basic to our very experience of reading and indeed to our articulation of experience in general that criticism has often passed it over in silence reading for the plot xi finding the plot both explores and helps to redress this critical neglect the book brings together an international group of scholars to address the nature effects and specific pleasures of consuming stories if the central focus is on france and popular literary fiction the book s scope like contemporary fiction itself observes no national frontiers and extends across a variety of media the book addresses both the empirical question of which genres and types of text have been and are most popular and the theoretical questions of how plots work what pleasures they offer to readers and why it matters that the plot should not be lost is plot a line an arc or a shape none of these rather than thinking of plot as a sequence of events or actions put into place solely through human agency against the backdrop of setting this book questions why we should distinguish between plot and setting and indeed whether we can make such a distinction after all plot yoon sun lee contends cannot be disentangled from the material setting in which it takes place in the natural laws of plot lee connects the history of the novel and the history of science to show how plot in the realist novel is given shape by the characteristics of the physical world and how in turn plot serves as the avenue through which the realist novel participates in the same lines of inquiry about the world as pursued by the natural and physical sciences lee argues that the novel emerges and evolves in tandem with the development of scientific practices and concepts in eighteenth and nineteenth century europe to investigate the idea of a unified and objective world drawing on readings from defoe austen scott and many others lee demonstrates how bodies human and non human behave according to laws that are built into worlds by plot and how they are subject to causes and consequences that can occur independently of individual action social forces or metaphysical destiny this interest in representing and exploring how things happen sets the novel apart from other literary genres and makes the history of science integral to the understanding of the history and theory of the novel and of narrative plot lee shows us is immersive and powerful because it satisfies our wish to know how things happen in a coherent objective and possibly real world in losing the plot well known scholar and writer leon de kock offers a lively and wide ranging analysis of postapartheid south african writing which he contends has morphed into a far more flexible and multifaceted entity than its predecessor if postapartheid literature s founding moment was the transition to democracy writing over the ensuing years has viewed the mandelan project with increasing doubt instead authors from all quarters are seen to be reporting in different ways and from divergent points of view on what is perceived to be a pathological public sphere in which the plot the mapping and making of social betterment appears to have been lost the compulsion to detect forensically the actual causes of such loss of direction has resulted in the prominence of creative nonfiction a significant adjunct in the rise of this is the new media which sets up a wounded space within which a cult of commiseration compulsively and repeatedly plays out the facts of the day on people s screens this de kock argues is reproduced in much postapartheid writing and although fictional forms persist in genres such as crime fiction with their tendency to overplot more serious fiction underplots yielding to the imprint of real conditions to determine the narrative construction this is the new official schonfield trust edition of the passover plot which is probably one of the most controversial books on the role of jesus the messiah yet to say that might detract from its scholarly attention to detail and its furnishing of new insights into the character of the man who changed the world so radically thus it is a must read for who are seeking a better understanding schonfield s aim in life was to build a bridge between peoples and he hoped that by digging into the facts behind the origins of christianity he would be able to uncover the real messiah misrepresented since time immemorial his sincere desire was that this understanding would bring together those who had so long been divided whilst his thesis that jesus plotted his own crucifixion may seem far fetched or even offensive at first seen in the light of john s gospel and the thinking of the times it provides food for thought to this book presents a new and exciting theory of the modern french novel by developing the notion of the narrative as a textual machine many turn of the century french novels thematically identified their means of narration through the various machines that they depicted the narrative devices that were particularly important in this self reflection included the temporal order of the plot the question of a narrative s beginning and end the hierarchy of narrative voices and the techniques of the point of view the question of mechanization became central on all these fronts has the novel become automated or machine like at the same time the machine metaphors in the novels of alfred jarry emile zola jules verne villiers de l isle adam raymond roussel combined the question of the narrative form with new ways to think about man s relationship with technology and the cultural environment the early modernist texts drew upon contradictory notions of technological promise and threat while they also depicted new forms of identity and behavior related to or modeled after machines these texts highlighted cultural assumptions concerning technological innovations and critiqued mainly through parody and through various figures of man machine fusion the positivistic belief in progress such writers looked for evidence of advanced forms of consciousness arising out of encounters with new technology such as telephones trains bicycles telegraphy phonographs and electricity this volume will be of interest to anyone working in the field of modern french literary and cultural history it will especially appeal to anyone intrigued with the origins of the modernist novel the history of narrative forms and the question of how the experience of new technology may be portrayed in literary texts taking a fresh look at mistaken identity in the work of an author who helped to introduce the device to comedy in this book professor traill shows how the outrageous mistakes many male characters in menander make about women are grounded in their own emotional needs the core of the argument derives from analysis of speeches by or about women with particular attention to the language used to articulate problems of knowledge and perception responsibility and judgement not only does menander freely borrow language situations and themes from tragedy but he also engages with some of tragedy s epistemological questions particularly the question of how people interpret what they see and hear menander was instrumental in turning the tragic theme of human ignorance into a comic device and inventing a plot type with enormous impact on the western tradition this book provides original insights into his achievements within their historical and intellectual context
