Informative Hypotheses 2011-10-26

when scientists formulate their theories expectations and hypotheses they often use statements like i expect mean a to be bigger than means b and c i expect that the relation between y and both x1 and x2 is positive and i expect the relation between y and x1 to be stronger than the relation between y and x2 stated otherwise they formulate their expectations in terms of inequality constraints among the parameters in which they are interested that is they formulate informative hypotheses there is currently a sound theoretical foundation for the evaluation of informative hypotheses using bayes factors p values and the generalized order restricted information criterion furthermore software that is often free is available to enable researchers to evaluate the informative hypotheses using their own data the road is open to challenge the dominance of the null hypothesis for contemporary research in behavioral social and other sciences consider the problem of a robot algorithm learning mechanism moving along the real line attempting to locate a particular point to assist the mechanism we assume that it can communicate with an environment oracle which guides it with information regarding the direction in which it should go if the environment is deterministic the problem is the deterministic point location problem which has been studied rather thoroughly 1 in its pioneering version 1 the problem was presented in the setting that the environment could charge the robot a cost which was proportional to the distance it was from the point sought for the question of having multiple communicating robots locate a point on the line has also been studied 1 2 in the stochastic version of this problem we consider the scenario when the learning mechanism attempts to locate a point in an interval with stochastic i e possibly erroneous instead of deterministic responses from the environment thus when it should really be moving to the right it may be advised to move to the left and vice versa apart from the problem being of importance in its own right the stochastic pointlocationproblemalsohas potentialapplications insolvingoptimization problems inmanyoptimizationsolutions forexampleinimageprocessing p tern recognition and neural computing 5 9 11 12 14 16 19 the algorithm worksits wayfromits currentsolutionto the optimal solutionbasedoninformation that it currentlyhas a crucialquestionis oneof determining the parameter whichtheoptimizationalgorithmshoulduse

this thesis studies a class of sensor management problems called informative path planning ipp sensor management refers to the problem of optimizing control inputs for sensor systems in dynamic environments in order to achieve operational objectives the problems are commonly formulated as stochastic optimal control problems where the objective is to maximize the information gained from future measurements in ipp the control inputs affect the movement of the sensor platforms and the goal is to compute trajectories from where the sensors can obtain measurements that maximize the estimation performance the core challenge lies in making decisions based on the predicted utility of future measurements in linear gaussian settings the estimation performance is independent of the actual measurements this means that ipp becomes a deterministic optimal control problem for which standard numerical optimization techniques can be applied this is exploited in the first part of this thesis a surveillance application is considered where a mobile sensor is gathering information about features of interest while avoiding being tracked by an adversarial observer the problem is formulated as an optimization problem that allows for a trade off between informativeness and stealth we formulate a theorem that makes it possible to reformulate a class of nonconvex optimization problems with matrix valued variables as convex optimization problems this theorem is then used to prove that the seemingly intractable ipp problem can be solved to global optimality using off the shelf optimization tools the second part of this thesis considers tracking of a maneuvering target using a mobile sensor with limited field of view the problem is formulated as an ipp problem where the goal is to generate a sensor trajectory that maximizes the expected tracking performance captured by a measure of the covariance matrix of the target state estimate when the measurements are nonlinear functions of the target state the tracking performance depends on the actual measurements which depend on the target's trajectory since these are unavailable in the planning stage the problem becomes a stochastic optimal control problem an approximation of the problem based on deterministic sampling of the distribution of the predicted target trajectory is proposed it is demonstrated in a simulation study that the proposed method significantly increases the tracking performance compared to a conventional approach that neglects the uncertainty in the future target trajectory

Informative Speaking 1968

the notion of information has nowadays become crucial both in our daily life and in many branches of science and technology in language studies this notion was used as a technical term for the first time about at least fifty years ago it is argued however that old and new used traditionally for characterising information refer in fact to the meta informative status of communicated chunks of information they provide information about other information since subjects and objects as attention driven phrases are also related to aboutness the presented meta informative centering mic framework includes predication theory by applying the mic theory to their analyses of english german french polish russian greek latin and japanese the authors provide comprehensive explanations of the most puzzling aspects of the pragmatic use of basic universal linguistic categories it seems clear now that canonical syntactic patterns their permutations and diverse transformations do indeed reflect very truly the meta informative encapsulation of utterances as a consequence this book presents new and coherent theoretical solutions as well as their very efficient applications the book explores ways in which the formal methods of linguistics can cast light on the structure of verbal interaction and in particular considers how successive utterances cohere together in continuous spoken discourse beginning with an earlier model of discourse analysis elaborated to deal with teacher pupil interaction in the classroom it then reviews attempts to extend this model to a variety of discourses such as committee talk doctor patient interviews broadcast discussions and the monologue of lectures the extension of the original model to other situations has prompted a number of innovations and additional insights which are expounded in a series of contributions linked by complimentary themes there are contributions on the role of intonation and of kinetics in discourse analysis explorations of the problems of the analytic category sentence and of the problems raised by casual conversation and there is extended discussion of the structural properties underlying exchanges of utterances the book moves easily between data and theory forming a unified whole it sums up a continuing and lively debate within a common tradition of discourse analysis and may well serve as a programmatic statement for future work in the field in mapping postcommunist cultures chernetsky argues that russia and ukraine exemplify the principal paradigms of post soviet cultural development in russia this has manifested itself in the subversive dismantling of the totalitarian linguistic regime and the foregrounding of previously marginalized subject positions in ukraine work in these areas shows how the traumas of centuries of colonial oppression are being overcome through the carnivalesque decrowning of ideological dogmas and an affirmation of a new type of community most recently demonstrated in the peaceful orange revolution of 2004 mapping postcommunist cultures also critiques the neglect of the former communist world in current models of cultural globalization
