children film and literacy explores the role of film in children's lives the films children engage in provide them with imaginative spaces in which they create play and perform familiar and unfamiliar fantasy and everyday narratives and this narrative play is closely connected to identity literacy and textual practices family is key to the encouragement of this social play and at school the playground is also an important site for this activity however in the literacy classroom some children encounter a discontinuity between their experiences of narrative at home and those that are valued in school through film children develop understandings of the common characteristics of narrative and the particular language of film this book demonstrates the ways in which children are able to express and develop distinct and complex understandings of narrative that is to say where they can draw on their own experiences including those in a moving image form children whose primary experiences of narrative are moving images face particular challenges when their experiences are not given opportunities for expression in the classroom and this has urgent implications for the teaching of literacy there is still no clear understanding of what causes the great majority of human congenital malformations and since in most sorts of human disease and pathology that yet prevail prevention usually awaits understanding of cause it is generally thought that the same is true of developmental aberrations but is this true for the relatively few congenital malformations whose causes are primarily environmental it is plain that their discovery has enabled prevention but not necessarily immediately it took a generation from the time of the discovery that maternal rubella was teratogenic to learn how to immunize against it much debate occurred before it was appreciated that thalidomide was a teratogen and only its removal from the pharmacist's shelf and the end of the epidemic of limb defects attributed to the drug overcame the last doubts for other proven environmental teratogens doubts and difficulties still continue the claimed prevalence of fetal genital distortions due to female sex hormones may have been exaggerated some potentially teratogenic therapeutic drugs like anticoagulants anticonvulsants and anticancer chemicals are still prescribed despite this danger because of their benefits to pregnant women for those congenital malformations whose basis is predominantly genetic or chromosomal it is different however prevention has not been achieved by the discovery of such causes as dramatic and revolutionary as some of them have been except in the questionable sense of interference with reproduction by genetic counseling or prenatal elimination but this has not inhibited the romanticists in the spirit of their last collaboration apartheid and racism in south african children s literature 1985 1995 yulisa amadu maddy and donnarae maccann once again come together to expose the neo imperialist overtones of contemporary children s fiction about africa examining the portrayal of african social customs religious philosophies and political structures in fiction for young people maddy and maccann reveal the western biases that often infuse stories by well known western authors in the book s introductory section maddy and maccann offer historical information concerning western notions of africa as primitive and then present background information about the complexity of feminism in africa and about the ongoing institutionalization of racism the main body of the study contains critiques of the novels or short stories of eleven well known writers including isabel allende and nancy farmer all demonstrating that children s literature continues to mis represent conditions and social relations in africa the study concludes with a look at those short stories of beverley naidoo which bring insight and historical accuracy to south african conflicts and emerging solutions educators literature professors publishers professors of diaspora and african studies and students of the mass media will find maddy and maccann s critique of racism in the representation of africa to be indispensable to students of multicultural literature
