Paul's Offer of Leniency (2 Cor 10:1)

much attention has been devoted to paul s quotations from the old testament but little attention has been given to paul s use of biblical narratives the most extensive use of scripture in 1 corinthians involves an allusion to israel s exodus 10 1 22 which contains only one quotation 1 cor 10 7 since there is much debate on how to identify scriptural allusions carla works examines two passages where there is overwhelming scholarly consensus regarding the presence of exodus imagery 1 corinthians 5 6 8 and 10 1 22 these passages therefore provide an ideal place to consider how paul is using israel s exodus traditions to instruct a predominantly non jewish congregation the author argues that the exodus tradition a tradition used to bolster israel s identity and to teach israel about the identity of god is reinterpreted by paul in light of christ and is employed to foster the identity formation of the corinthians as the church of one god and one lord 1 cor 8 6 parable research has to a large degree ignored the sermon on the mount sm and for its part research into the sm has likewise left the parables by the wayside however the use of parabolic language in more than one third of the sm influences its interpretation and indeed opens up a new approach to it in the current volume ernst baasland focuses on this important factor whilst also taking the rhetoric of jesus teaching into consideration the author maintains that rhetorical features have a great bearing on the interpretation of the text with the overall structure illuminating the entire composition of the sermon fresh insights into its oration therefore serve to challenge the source problem in a new way the religious and philosophical settings of this most well known of christ s preachings are clarified by its parables and rhetoric and the sermon s jewish background has often been investigated while the author continues with that particular task he simultaneously affords more emphasis to the parallels in greek hellenistic literature the combining of all these factors leads to a clearer comprehension of the sermon on the mount s philosophy of life and provides a better understanding of this classical text this dissertation argues against the widespread belief among current scholars that galilee experienced extensive hellenization rapid urbanization and a socio economic crisis in the first century c e as a result of major socio economic changes initiated by herod the great and his successors my research indicates that earlier studies allowed the textual evidence to have an undue influence on the way that scholars interpret the archaeological evidence and vice versa unlike previous studies on early roman galilee the dissertation begins by attempting to interpret each source for the region individually and without recourse to other sources after establishing what each source says on its own about galilee the dissertation analyzes the data as a whole and offers a reconstruction of galilean society in the first century c e that better reflects the available evidence the major findings are that the region was politically stable until the great revolt of 66 c e that the region was much less hellenized than some prominent scholars claim that the urbanization process initiated by herod antipas had less of a negative immediate impact on galilean society than modern scholars usually assume and that galilee was not experiencing any unusual or severe socio economic problems prior to the revolt

the claim that revelation s hymns function as did classical tragic choral lyrics insofar as they comment upon or interpret the surrounding narrative has become axiomatic in studies of revelation justin jeffcoat schedtler marks an advance in this line of inquiry by offering an exegetical analysis of revelation s hymns alongside a presentation of the forms and functions of ancient tragic choruses and choral lyrics evaluating the hymns in light of the varieties and complexities of ancient tragic choruses he demonstrate that they are not best evaluated in terms of choral lyrics generally but in terms of dramatic hymns in particular insofar as they constitute mythological theological reflections on the surrounding narrative and function to situate the surrounding dramatic activity in a particular mythological theological contexts this study fills a gap in previous research concerning the portrayal of peter in matthew especially the research of narrative critical studies although narrative critical studies generally recognize that matthew has portrayed peter and the disciples as recipients of revelation at points they almost entirely neglect the apocalypses or apocalyptic literature more broadly as a potentially helpful background for this motif nor does the motif itself figure significantly into their conclusions therefore part 1 of this study examines fourteen different jewish and christian apocalypses in order to determine generic aspects of how the apocalypses portray their seers and to identify specific textual features that support these generic aspects of a seer s portrayal these specific textual features then provide the guiding coordinates for part 2 which assesses the influence of the generic portrayal of apocalyptic seers on the portrayal of peter and the disciples in matthew s gospel and main source mark s gospel like the apocalypses both evangelists deploy the features of exclusionary statements narrative isolation dissemination details and emphasis of cognitive humanity and emotional physical humanity to portray peter and the disciples as the exclusive recipients of revealed mysteries and as humans who encounter the mysteries of the divine realm this leads to the conclusion that both evangelists envisaged peter and the disciples as apocalyptic seers in some sense however matthew s redaction of markan source material incorporation of q source material and his own special material yield a more fully developed or more explicit portrayal of peter and the disciples as apocalyptic seers than his markan predecessor the study concludes by focusing directly on peter s significance for matthew and his earliest audience the research suggests that peter s significance was in part as principal apocalyptic seer which requires revision to the predominant scholarly conclusions about peter in matthew drawing on recent insights from postcolonial theory and social psychology travis b williams seeks to diagnose the social strategy of good works in 1 peter by examining how the persistent admonition to do good is intended to be an appropriate response to social conflict challenging the modern consensus which interprets the epistle s good works language as an attempt to accommodate greco roman society and thereby to lessen social hostility the author demonstrates that the exhortation to do good envisages a pattern of conduct which stands opposed to popular values the petrine author appropriates terminology that was commonly associated with wealth and social privilege and reinscribes it with a new meaning in order to provide his marginalized readers with an alternative vision of reality one in which the honor and approval so valued in society is finally available to them the good works theme thus articulates a competing discourse which challenges dominant social structures and the hegemonic ideology which underlies them marlene crüsemann examines the thessalonian letters in the context of jewish christian social history building upon her analysis of 1 thessalonians crüsemann comes to the conclusion that it is post apostolic epistolary communication and questions whether it is a letter of paul and indeed whether it is an early letter this analysis in turn adds weight to the thesis propounded by some previous scholars that the letter is somewhat out of place and may be a later work by another author crüsemann subsequently illustrates that 2 thessalonians by contrast revokes the far reaching social separation from judaism that characterizes 1 thessalonians and thus aims socio historically at a solidarity with the entire jewish people analysing the concept of the jews as supposed enemy the future of the greek gentile community and the relationship between the two letters crüsemann concludes that the discussion about a divergence of the ways of christians and jews in early christian times needs to be realigned this book is a study of paul s response to the financial help he received from the church in philippi whilst he was a prisoner in rome philippians 4 10 20 has always puzzled commentators because of its seemingly strained and tortured mode of thanks word studies psychological studies and literary studies have all failed to provide insight into the text which is unique in the pauline corpus using contemporary sources dr peterman re examines this difficult passage in the light of greek and roman practices and language regarding the exchange of gifts and favours in society he concludes that gift exchange or social reciprocity with its expectations and obligations permeated every level of society in paul s day and that paul s seemingly ungracious response was an attempt to create a new christian attitude to gifts and to giving in the first book to present the history of baltimore school desegregation howell s baum shows how good intentions got stuck on what gunnar myrdal called the american dilemma immediately after the 1954 brown v board of education decision the city s liberal school board voted to desegregate and adopted a free choice policy that made integration voluntary baltimore s school desegregation proceeded peacefully without the resistance or violence that occurred elsewhere however few whites chose to attend school with blacks and after a few years of modest desegregation schools resegregated and became increasingly segregated the school board never changed its policy black leaders had urged the board to adopt free choice and despite the limited desegregation continued to support the policy and never sued the board to do anything else baum finds that american liberalism is the key to explaining how this happened myrdal observed that many whites believed in equality in the abstract but considered blacks inferior and treated them unequally school officials were classical liberals who saw the world in terms of individuals not races they adopted a desegregation policy that explicitly ignored students race and asserted that all students were equal in freedom to choose schools while their policy let whites who disliked blacks avoid integration school officials liberal thinking hindered them from understanding or talking about the city s history of racial segregation continuing barriers to desegregation and realistic change strategies from the classroom to city hall baum examines how baltimore s distinct identity as a border city between north and south shaped local conversations about the national conflict over race and equality the city s history of wrestling with the legacy of brown reveals americans preferred way of dealing with racial issues not talking about race this avoidance baum concludes allows segregation to continue
