focusing on the problem of pleasure law orientalism and postcolonialism uncovers the organizing principles by which the legal subject was colonized that occidental law was complicit in colonial expansion is obvious what remains to be addressed however is the manner in which law and legal discourse sought to colonize individual subjects as subjects of law it was through the permission of pleasure that modern western subjects were refined and domesticated legally sanctioned outlets for private and social enjoyment instilled and continue to instil within the individual tight self control over behaviour there are however states of behaviour considered to be repugnant to and in excess of modern codes of civility drawing on a broad range of literature including classical jurisprudence eighteenth century orientalist scholarship early travel literature and nineteenth century debates surrounding the rule of law yet concentrating on the experience of british india the argument here is that such excesses were deemed to be an oriental phenomenon through the encounter with the orient and with the fantasy of its excess piyel haldar concludes the relationship between the subject and the law was transformed and must therefore be re assessed jsl invites the submission of manuscripts that contribute to the exchange of ideas and scholarship about schools and leadership all theoretical and methodological approaches are welcome we do not advocate or practice a bias toward any mode of inquiry e.g qualitative vs quantitative empirical vs conceptual discipline based vs interdisciplinary and instead operate from the assumption that all careful and methodologically sound research has the potential to contribute to our understanding of school leadership we strongly encourage authors to consider both the local and global implications of their work the journal's goal is to clearly communicate with a diverse audience including both school based and university based educators the journal embraces a broad conception of school leadership and welcomes manuscripts that reflect the diversity of ways in which this term is understood the journal is interested not only in manuscripts that focus on administrative leadership in schools and school districts but also in manuscripts that inquire about teacher student parent and community leadership
