it has recently become clear that the excitatory amino acids and their receptors are critically linked to normal processes of development and synaptic transmission and to learning and memory as well as to identifiable disease processes such as alzheimer s disease epilepsy and cortical damage due to stroke ischemia moreover the pharmacological nature and chemical structures of many of the receptors and binding sites for these synaptic mediators and their modulators are becoming known thereby enabling the cloning of each receptor subtype such advances may help immeasurably in the identification of endogenous ligands for the amino acid receptors and the development of pharmaceuticals and other therapeutic interventions in coming years
