despite the efforts of southeast asian governments and of asean transboundary haze continues to be a major environmental problem in southeast asia this book demonstrates that the issue is complex and explains why efforts to solve the problem in purely political terms are ineffective and likely to continue to be ineffective the book shows how state led state incentivised agribusiness development lies at the heart of the problem leading to a large rise in palm oil production with extensive clearing of forests leading to deliberate or accidental fires and the resulting haze moreover although the forest clearing is occurring in indonesia many of the companies involved are malaysian and singaporean and further many of these companies have close relationships with the politicians and officials responsible for addressing the problem and who thereby have a conflict of interest the author concludes by discussing the huge difficulties involved in overturning this system of patronage politics in comparative area studies the editors and contributors are motivated by two basic convictions first that intensive regional research remains indispensable to the social sciences and second that this research risks becoming marginalized in the absence of concerted efforts to link it to disciplinary concepts and theories that have relevance beyond a single region in the last thirty years china has experienced rapid economic development and urbanisation which has resulted in high levels of environmental degradation and has put considerable pressure on the country s infrastructure and natural resources as china commits to considerably lower the carbon intensity of its economy this volume analyses and explains the governance of climate change mitigation responses in major chinese cities the book focuses specifically on two highly carbon intensive sectors buildings and transport in guangzhou shenzhen and hong kong to explore how collaborative municipal networks function in practice in chinese cities the authors find that effective coordination relies on the political will of local administrative elites the political significance attached to climate change issues the legitimate authority granted to the coordinating agency and human and financial capitals collaboration is hampered by limited span of network engagement inadequate authority of the primary network participants insufficient input and output legitimacy of the sectoral innovations and missing linkages across functionally segregated sectors the book concludes that the enhanced collaboration and coordination between networks that has emerged in the process of low carbon transitions is transforming the chinese environmental state into a more pluralistic inclusive and legitimate one this book will be of interest to researchers and practitioners across disciplines including chinese studies environmental politics and policy urban studies and planning and geography not just in the euro but in the european model aging and uneconomical europeans are being squeezed between innovative americans and efficient asians it is said with debt and demographics dragging down them down one hears that european economies will not grow much unless radically new ways are discovered the end of complacency in europe is a good thing but this loss of confidence could be dangerous the danger is that in a rush to rejuvenate growth the attractive attributes of the european development model could be abandoned along with the weak in fact the european growth model has many strong points and enviable accomplishments one can say without exaggeration that europe had invented a convergence machine taking in poor countries and helping them become high income economies world bank research has identified 27 countries that have grown from middle income to high income since 1987 a few thanks to the discovery and exploitation of massive natural resources e g oil in oman and trinidad and tobago several others like japan hong kong singapore taiwan and south korea embracing aggressive export led strategies which involved working and saving a lot postponing political liberties and looking out only for themselves but half of the countries that have grown from middle income to high income croatia cyprus czech republic estonia greece hungary latvia malta poland portugal slovak republic and slovenia are actually in europe this is why the european model was so attractive and unique and why with some well designed efforts it ought to be made right again this volume explores the creation of the collection now known as the new testament while it is generally accepted that it did not emerge as a collection prior to the late second century ce a more controversial question is how it came to be how did the writings that make up the new testament the gospels the so called praxapostolos acts and the canonical letters the epistles of paul and revelation make their way into the collection and what do we know about their possible historical origins and in turn the emergence of the new testament itself the new testament as we know it first became recognisable in more detail in irenaeus of lyon towards the end of the second century ce however questions remain as to how and by whom was it redacted was it a slow organic process in which texts written by different authors members of different communities and in various places grew together into one book or were certain writings compiled on the basis of an editorial decision by an individual or a group of editors revised for this purpose and partly harmonised with each other this volume sketches out the complex development of the new testament arguing that key second century scholars played an important role in the emergence of the canonical collection and putting forward the possible historical origins of the text s composition christ s torah the making of the new testament in the second century is of interest to students and scholars working on the new testament and anyone with an interest in early christianity more broadly in a market environment where economic actors conduct themselves as diligent and conscientious managers the regulation of related party transactions rpts would be largely irrelevant unfortunately the corporate reality is far from an ideal world that is innocent of market abuse and corporate fraud it remains necessary to protect minority shareholders from the wrongdoings of majority shareholders and to protect all shareholders from opportunistic managerial behaviour this timely book the first on the subject since implementation of the european union s eu s revised shareholders rights directive provides in depth analysis of how and to what extent rpts are covered by existing legal requirements on capital protection and corporate group regulation highlighting experiences and strategies adopted in germany poland and the netherlands as examples for eastern european countries and in particular ukraine beyond his comparative analysis of the current status the author offers recommendations for more effective handling of rpts investigating such aspects as the following what constitutes a corporate group and how group issues are regulated in the various legal systems what constitutes a conflict of interest originating in ownership and control and what types of such conflicts occur whether rpts within corporate groups should receive special treatment relative to transactions outside groups combatting corporate raiding most often carried out through illegal seizure of corporate assets approval and disclosure requirements for rpts and how information about rpts is disclosed publicly drawing on resources including legislation case law scholarship and intensive discussions with practicing lawyers from several jurisdictions the author underscores the imperative of establishing limitations and requirements that oblige a company s officers shareholders and other potential related parties to follow certain rules whenever they wish to enter into an rpt as a contribution to the debate about the convergence between eu corporate law and that of major eastern european states the book has no peers practitioners in both east and west who advise on compliance with regulations for rpts or represent stakeholders interests against abusive rpts will ensure appropriate remedies and protection mechanisms for their clients
