Courting Migrants

2020-07-20

migrants have for some time engaged in the politics of their homelands from a distance but as this book argues politicians are increasingly looking beyond their national boundaries for electoral and political support while migrants rarely cast decisive votes in homeland elections they are not marginal to homeland politics courting migrants looks at how extraterritorial outreach by homeland states and parties alters the boundaries of political membership and intersects with migrant agency to transform politics at home it addresses three specific questions under what conditions and in what ways do homeland authorities reach out to migrants how do these migrants respond and to what extent does their response affect homeland governance katrina burgess argues that globalization and the spread of democracy since the 1970s have encouraged politicians in the global south to reach out to migrants in search of economic resources foreign policy support and or electoral advantage they do so by cultivating feelings of loyalty that induce some kinds of migrant engagement while discouraging others whether or not these politicians succeed depends on where migrants are located how many resources they have what kinds of identities they value and why they left their homeland in the first place this interaction between outreach and engagement has implications in turn for how migrants are responding to the current wave of populism and authoritarianism around the globe the book is based on in depth research on state migrant relations in four high migration countries turkey dominican republic philippines and mexico

Materials Discovery and Design

2018-09-22

this book addresses the current status challenges and future directions of data driven

materials discovery and design it presents the analysis and learning from data as a key theme in many science and cyber related applications the challenging open questions as well as future directions in the application of data science to materials problems are sketched computational and experimental facilities today generate vast amounts of data at an unprecedented rate the book gives guidance to discover new knowledge that enables materials innovation to address grand challenges in energy environment and security the clearer link needed between the data from these facilities and the theory and underlying science the role of inference and optimization methods in distilling the data and constraining predictions using insights and results from theory is key to achieving the desired goals of real time analysis and feedback thus the importance of this book lies in emphasizing that the full value of knowledge driven discovery using data can only be realized by integrating statistical and information sciences with materials science which is increasingly dependent on high throughput and large scale computational and experimental data gathering efforts this is especially the case as we enter a new era of big data in materials science with the planning of future experimental facilities such as the linac coherent light source at stanford lcls ii the european x ray free electron laser exfel and marie matter radiation in extremes the signature concept facility from los alamos national laboratory these facilities are expected to generate hundreds of terabytes to several petabytes of in situ spatially and temporally resolved data per sample the questions that then arise include how we can learn from the data to accelerate the processing and analysis of reconstructed microstructure rapidly map spatially resolved properties from high throughput data devise diagnostics for pattern detection and guide experiments towards desired targeted properties the authors are an interdisciplinary group of leading experts who bring the excitement of the nascent and rapidly emerging field of materials informatics to the reader

Legal Identity, Race and Belonging in the Dominican Republic

2021-11-02

this book offers a critical perspective into social policy architectures primarily in relation to questions of race national identity and belonging in the americas it is the first to identify a connection between the role of international actors in promoting the universal provision of legal identity in the dominican republic with arbitrary measures to restrict access to citizenship paperwork from populations of largely but not exclusively haitian descent the book highlights the current gap in global policy that overlooks the possible alienating effects of social inclusion measures promulgated by international organisations particularly in countries that discriminate against migrant descended populations it also supports concerns regarding the dangers of identity management noting that as administrative systems improve new insecurities and uncertainties can develop crucially the book provides a cautionary tale over the rapid expansion of identification practices offering a timely critique of global policy measures which aim to provide all people everywhere with a legal identity in the run up to the 2030 un sustainable development goals sdgs

Extraordinary Justice

2019-11-19

in just a few short years the khmer rouge presided over one of the twentieth century s cruelest reigns of terror since its 1979 overthrow there have been several attempts to hold the perpetrators accountable from a people s revolutionary tribunal shortly afterward through the early 2000s extraordinary chambers in the courts of cambodia also known as the khmer rouge tribunal extraordinary justice offers a definitive account of the quest for justice in cambodia that uses this history to develop a theoretical framework for understanding the interaction between law and politics in war crimes tribunals craig etcheson one of the world s foremost experts on the cambodian genocide and its aftermath draws on decades of experience to trace the evolution of transitional justice in the country from the late 1970s to the present he considers how war crimes tribunals come into existence how they operate and unfold and what happens in their wake etcheson argues that the concepts of legality that hold sway in such tribunals should be understood in terms of their orientation toward politics both in the khmer rouge tribunal and generally a magisterial chronicle of the inner workings of postconflict justice extraordinary justice challenges understandings of the relationship between politics and the law with important implications for the future of attempts to seek accountability for crimes against humanity

A Collective Theory of Genocidal Intent

tackling one of the most confusing and controversial issues in the field of international criminal law i.e. the genocidal intent element this monograph seeks to develop an account of genocidal intent from a collectivist perspective drawing upon the two layered structure of the crime of genocide composed of the conduct level and context level it detects the genocidal intent element at the context level the genocidal intent found in this manner belongs to a collective which significantly departs from the prior individualistic understandings of the notion of genocidal intent the author argues that the crime of genocide is not a crime of mens rea collective genocidal intent at the context level operates in a way that renders the crime of genocide itself a criminal enterprise the idea of genocide as a criminal enterprise also suggests that genocide is a leadership crime in respect of which only the high level actors can be labeled as principals as opposed to accessories the book criticizes the dominant individualistic approaches to genocidal intent in particular the knowledge based approach which have thus far governed the relevant jurisprudential and academic analysis it further demonstrates that the hidden notion of collective genocide silently governs the relevant international jurisprudence practitioners and academics in the field of international criminal law and related disciplines will find in this book a new approach to the crime of genocide the text is the first ever book length exposition of a collective account of genocidal intent its accessibility is highly enhanced by relevant footnotes sangkul kim is lecturer at korea university in seoul and research fellow with the centre for international law research and policy cilrap he served as associate legal adviser at the office of the prosecutor of the international criminal court 2004 2008 he earned law degrees from korea university and georgetown university law center
