robert redfield is remembered today primarily as an anthropologist but during his lifetime redfield s cross disciplinary activity reflected a strong interest in infusing anthropological practice with sociological theory like a handful of other anthropologists including a r radcliffe brown and bronislaw malinowski who shared his interests during the 1920s through 1930s his works came to define a new subfield known as social anthropology redfield was distinct in being one of the first americans to devote himself seriously to social anthropology a field dominated initially by british scholars he spent his career at the university of chicago and his anthropology bore the distinct mark of sociology as developed and practiced at that institution indeed redfield played a major role in defining what has been called the second chicago school of sociology this volume brings together redfield s most important contributions to social anthropology during the 1920s sociology and anthropology constituted a single department at the university of chicago although most students concentrated on sociology or anthropology redfield chose to pursue both fields with equal intensity he adopted as his central interest the leading problematic of the 1920s the study of social change chicago school sociologists approached social change by examining zones of rapid transition within the city for example areas populated by recently arrived immigrants with the goal of elucidating general principles or dynamics of social transition redfield s work can be seen as falling into three distinct theoretical categories 1 the study of social change or modernization 2 peasant studies and 3 the comparative study of civilizations drawing from articles book excerpts and unpublished papers and letters this work presents redfield s central contributions in each of these areas seen as a whole this volume traces redfield s seminal contributions to the early development of mo
