The Eye of Dread 2020-09-28

two whip poor wills were uttering their insistent note hidden somewhere among the thick foliage of the maple and basswood trees that towered above the spring down behind the house where the ballards lived the sky in the west still glowed with amber light and the crescent moon floated like a golden boat above the horizon's edge the day had been unusually warm and the family were all gathered on the front porch in the dusk the lamps within were unlighted and the evening wind blew the white muslin curtains out and in through the opened windows the porch was low only a step from the ground and the grass of the dooryard felt soft and cool to the bare feet of the children in front and all around lay the garden flowers and fruit quaintly intermingled down the long path to the gate where three roads met great bunches of peonies lifted white blossoms luminously white in the moonlight and on either side rows of currant bushes cast low dark shadows and here and there dwarf crab apple trees tossed pale scented flowers above them in the dusky eveninglight the iris flowers showed frail and iridescent against the dark shadows under the bushes the children chattered quietly at their play as if they felt a mystery around them and small betty was sure she saw fairies dancing on the iris flowers when the light breeze stirred them but of this she said nothing lest her practical older sister should drop a scornful word of unbelief a thing betty shrank from and instinctively avoided why should she be told there were no such things as fairies and goblins and pigwidgeons when one might be at that very moment dancing at her elbow and hear it all so betty wagged her curly golden head wise with the wisdom of childhood and went her own ways and thought her own thoughts as for the strange creatures of wondrous power that peopled the earth and the sky and the streams she knew they were there she could almost see them could almost feel them and hear them even though they were hidden from mortal sight did she not often go when the sun was setting and climb the fence behind the barn under the great locust and silver leaf poplar trees where none could see her and watch the fiery griffins in the west could she not see them flame and flash their wings spreading far out across the sky in fantastic flight or drawn close and folded about them in hues of purple and crimson and gold could she not see the flying mist women flinging their floating robes of softest pink and palest green around their slender limbs and trailing them delicately across the deepening sky had she not heard the giants may seen them driving their terrible steeds over the tumbled clouds and rolling them smooth with noise of thunder under huge rolling machines a thousand times bigger than that farmer hopkins used to crush the clods in his wheat field in the spring had she not seen the flashes of fire dart through the heavens struck by the hoofs of the giants huge beasts ah she knew if martha would only listen to her she could show her some of these true things and stop her scoffing

the hand of justice series started out as one book the eye of zoar released in e book format and paperback through author house in july 2012 as a rising darkness the original story was lost in a move and the re writing of it resulted in plot changes that expanded the storyline especially when the ending changed and i lost my main character such are the vagaries of fictional worlds i suppose the norm for characters in this series is bi sexuality the main character is to use the language of his world slye he beds only with men those readers looking for salacious scenes will probably be disappointed the sexual nature of the men and women of zetaria is a fact of life and even in the use of prostitutes there is respect the dread wolf picks up where a rising darkness ends

to understand this book you have to go back to 1990 i was in my early twenties and the recession was on in australia i lived alone in my one bedroom flat and got into the music and club scene overnight i started to write poetry everyday and bought my first acoustic guitar the experience was profoundly spiritual and at times supernatural i knew then that i had a calling and that i would follow it my whole life i published my first book in 1997 dream engineering and will republish it next i will also publish another much larger collection that is dream engineering unedited these three books make up the entire story the book avenue dread itself is best described as a spiritual poetic journey to find truth it was written in many different locations and over a period of ten years it is made up of many small individual poems with a few long exceptions the work as whole had very little editing unlike dream engineering which i heavily edited and now will present in its true form avenue dread is a story of darkness that finds the light there are many themes that run through the entire collection some of the things i try to say may be a little abstract but overall i think the message is clear it has the element of love it also has darkness and light because these were all the things i experienced i found god and was able to finish my last book it is my hope to inspire people to god the poetry also blossomed into music which i also hope to present you can see my music and contact me at magcorp hotmail comfacebookcavador muse
