unheard witness foregrounds a young woman s experience of domestic abuse resistance and survival before the mass shooting at the university of texas at austin in 1966 in 1966 kathy leissner whitman was a twenty three year old teacher dreaming of a better future she was an avid writer of letters composing hundreds in the years before she was stabbed to death by her husband charles whitman who went on to commit a mass shooting from the tower at the university of texas at austin kathy s writing provides a rare glimpse of how one woman described and sought to change her short life with a coercive controlling and violent partner unheard witness provides a portrait of kathy s life doing so at a time when americans are slowly grasping the link between domestic abuse and mass shootings public violence often follows violence in the home yet such private crimes continue to be treated separately and even erased in the public imagination jo scott coe shows how kathy s letters go against the grain of the official history which ignored kathy s perspective with its nuanced understanding of abuse and survival unheard witness is an intimate real time account of trust and vulnerability in its own way a prologue to our age of atrocities
