this book is about war not the causes and results not the planning and the campaigns not the artillery and the bombs it is about the heinous crimes committed by the combatants the horrifying experiences of civilians the devastation of cities and villages the killing and the dying the glory leading to revulsion and guilt and the assimilation of suffering that either ends in death or in the triumph of the soul it looks at the struggle of the church to remain faithful and the servants of the church who seek to bring sense and solace to the victims it discusses antisemitism racism and war itself from biblical perspectives it reveals the unjustifiable reasons for engaging in war and how this brings catastrophic results for all peoples the mental instability of the survivors and the loss and grief of those on the home front in war how can men and women carry out the actions that they do as viktor frankl writes after all man is that being who has invented the gas chambers of auschwitz however he is also that being who has entered those gas chambers upright with the lord s prayer or the shema yisrael on his lips though new zealand author janet frame 1924 2004 lived at a time of growing dissatisfaction with european cultural models and though her auto biography fiction and letters all testify to the fact that a direct encounter between herself and buddhism occurred her work has so far never been examined from the vantage point of its indebtedness to buddhism it is of the utmost significance however that a buddhist navigation of frame s texts should shed fresh light on large segments of the framean corpus which have tended to remain obdurately mysterious this includes passages centering on such themes as the existence of a non dual world or a character s sudden embrace of a non ego like self of equal significance is the conclusion one then draws that this unharnessed world which human beings are often unable to embrace has always been right under their nose for whenever the aspect of the intellect that filters perceptions into mutually excluding categories fails to function he or she finds a place of subjective arrival in and sees this supposedly unknowable beyond thus possibly against the grain of mainstream criticism this study argues that janet frame constantly seeks ways through which the infinite and the other can be approached though not corrupted by the perceiving self and that she found in the buddhist epistemology a pathway towards evoking such alterity in the nineteenth century a new type of mystic emerged in catholic europe while cases of stigmatisation had been reported since the thirteenth century this era witnessed the development of the stigmatic young women who attracted widespread interest thanks to the appearance of physical stigmata to understand the popularity of these stigmatics we need to regard them as the saints and religious celebrities of their time with their miraculous bodies they fit contemporary popular ideas if not necessarily those of the church of what sanctity was as knowledge about them spread via modern media and their fame became marketable they developed into religious celebrities halperin traces the persistence of traditional class structures during the development of industrial capitalism in europe and the way in which these structures shaped states and state behavior and generated conflict she documents european conflicts between 1789 and 1914 including small and medium scale conflicts often ignored by researchers and links these conflicts to structures characteristic of industrial capitalist development in europe before 1945 this book revisits the historical terrain of karl polanyi s the great transformation 1944 however it argues that polanyi s analysis is in important ways inaccurate and misleading ultimately the book shows how and why the conflicts both culminated in the world wars and brought about a great transformation in europe its account of this period challenges not only polanyi s analysis but a variety of influential perspectives on nationalism development conflict international systems change and globalization both north dakota and south dakota have long been among the most reliably republican states in the nation in the past century voters have only chosen two democrats franklin roosevelt and lyndon b johnson and in 2016 both states preferred donald trump by over thirty points yet in the decades before world war ii the people of the northern plains were not universally politically conservative instead many dakotans including republicans supported experiments in agrarian democracy that incorporated ideas from populism and progressivism to socialism and communism and fought against bigness in all its forms including bonanza farms out of state railroads corporations banks corrupt political parties and distant federal bureaucracies but also surprisingly the culture of militarism and the expansion of american military power abroad in nuclear country catherine mcnicol stock explores the question of why between 1968 and 1992 most voters in the dakotas abandoned their distinctive ideological heritage and came to embrace the conservatism of the new right stock focuses on how this transformation coincided with the coming of the military and national security states to the countryside via the placement of military bases and nuclear missile silos on the northern plains this militarization influenced regional political culture by reinforcing or re contextualizing long standing local ideas and practices particularly when the people of the plains found that they shared culturally conservative values with the military after adopting the first two planks of the new right national defense and conservative social ideas dakotans endorsed the third plank of new right ideology fiscal conservatism ultimately stock contends that militarization and nuclearization were the historical developments most essential to the creation of the rural new right throughout the united states and that their impact can best be seen in this often overlooked region s history
